NICHOLAS KELLEY

Class Treasurer

EDWARD JOSIAH DIVES

Class Committee

EDWARD JOSIAH DIVES

ROBERT GRANT, JR.

DANIEL ALLERTON NEWHALL

To the Members of the Class of 1906:

Your Secretary presents to you herewith, printed and bound in a form as convenient as may be, the collection of your own accounts of your lives since graduation. Although great efforts were devoted to making this Report more complete than the last, and although many of the men who were "not heard from" four years ago have sent in replies this time, the total number who have failed to reply is almost the same. Your Secretary hopes that by the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of our graduation every member of the Class will have given at least one account of himself. The number of "lost" men is fortunately small.

The Report has a wider interest than merely as a compendium of useful information as to our addresses, occupations, marriages and children. It gives some sort of an indication of what a decade of the life of a Harvard class contributes to the Republic. Your Secretary believes that after reading this record you will feel proud of the accomplishments of our Class in establishing homes, bringing up children and assuming important responsibilities in connection with both the private business and the public affairs of the Nation. The difficulty with the kind of a report, based, as the Harvard Class Reports are, upon the word for word publication of accounts of their own lives written by the men themselves, is the natural modesty which leads most men to believe that their successes are not interesting to others and makes them hesitate to tell the full measure of their achievements. Your Secretary hopes sometime to depart from the present method, approved by the custom of Class Secretaries, of leaving you to your own modest statements, and to do himself the pleasure of publishing a Report in which he himself shall write the accounts. The Class will then have an opportunity better to understand, as a character in one of Mr. De Morgan's novels says, "What mighty fine people we all are!"

As in the case of the Sexennial Report, and of the reports of other classes, the Class employed the assistance of the Harvard Alumni Association in the preparation of this Report. The thanks of the Class are due the Association and to Nelson C. Metcalf, '96, for the unsparing efforts which they have bestowed upon the work.

Yours sincerely,

NICHOLAS KELLEY, Secretary.

School	Classical High School, Worcester, Mass.
Years in College	1902-1906.
Degrees	A.B., 1906.
Occupation	Efficiency Work for Lathe and Mill Manufacturers.
Address	20 John St., Worcester, Mass.

My facsimile obituary for the sexennial report told of a year in the Harvard Law School, followed by various meanderings in the West, with final entombing upon a cattle ranch at Buttonwillow, California, as manager of grain warehouses and lumber yard. Shortly thereafter; to wit, early in January, 1913, I was made the first local purchasing agent for the company, with manifold duties, among other things being required to install an efficiency system in the machine shop, as well as initiate an effective method of ordering, checking, receiving and distributing supplies. When things were running fairly satisfactorily, I received the compliment of once more having the grain and lumber added to my duties. The spring of 1914 found me contemplating my first vacation in four years, and in May I came East for three months of solid loafing. Saw Nick Kelley in New York, Al Schaefer, Gordon Thayer, Arthur Holcombe, Reuel Beach and others in Boston and Cambridge, and Henry Lincoln in Chicago. Being 1906 men, of course all looked healthy and flourishing and it was an intense satisfaction to grip them by the hand after the long interim, and learn what had happened in that interim. In August I returned to Bakersfield, Cal., and immediately aided the launching of an "Independent Ice Company." This being bought out, I returned East in April, 1915, after a day at the Exposition, and it is my present intention to remain permanently. I joined the efficiency department of the Reed Prentice Company in July, 1915, where I am still working (February, 1916). My engagement to Melinda Wheeler Rockwood, Smith 1906, of Englewood, N. J., has been announced. Member: Elks, Bakersfield, Cal., Masons, Bakersfield, Cal.

Upon leaving college, my first step was to make a start towards the duties of life. With this end in view I found employment in the Washington Mills of the American Woolen Company, with the intention of learning all steps of the manufacture of cloth. In June, 1907, I had the opportunity of connecting myself with the American Radiator Company, where I now am, having labored both as inside and outside salesman. My life has not experienced any especial jolts either in the way of any offices of honor or trips of pleasure or business. After receiving my degree in June, 1906, I went to Europe, visiting Holland, Germany, Switzerland and France. In October, 1906, I matriculated at the University at Freiburg, Germany, where I made a pretence at special work in human and comparative anatomy. I was made a member of one of the well-known German student clubs with the result that I learned more of German convivial customs than I did of anatomy. The year 1907 I spent in New York at the College of Physicians and Surgeons. In June, 1908, I was married to Miss Cornelia P. Ruck, of New York. I entered the employ of Merck and Company, manufacturing chemists, New York. For a time I busied myself editing "Merck's Archives", a monthly journal devoted to materia medica and therapeutics. More recently my work has been what most people would call "advertising", but which we at the office dignify by the title "propaganda work". I have taken considerable interest in local politics and at present am secretary of one of the political organizations. I am particularly interested in scientific subjects and in legislation affecting social conditions. Motor-boating is my favorite recreation. I have written short articles, notes and abstracts on chemical, pharmaceutical and medical subjects.

Upon reflection, I fail to see why in this report, Bob Withington should continue to have a monopoly of the pleasures of affable autobiography, as distinguished from the writing of mere orthodox monosyllabic who's who paragraphs. I sometimes feel rather genial myself, and anyhow this kind of typesetting costs less than the uninitiated may be led to suppose. After graduating, I taught for a year in Middlesex School at Concord, Mass. Although it was an interesting and on the whole delightful, as well as developing, experience, it convinced me that I was not born to be a teacher of small boys,—or large. "Remainder over" to the Harvard Law School for one year, preparatory to entering the law-publishing business. After a summer in England, I returned to St. Paul and entered the employ of the West Publishing Company in a capacity so humble that (whatever my contemporaneous views on the subject) I have since wondered why they paid me ten dollars a week for it. After two years, it became desirable to "complete" my legal education, which I did by attending the St. Paul College of Law (a night law school), graduating in 1912 and being admitted to the bar of Minnesota,—on diploma. Still as an employee of the West Publishing Company, I spent three years variously as travelling salesman in North Carolina, as peripatetic lecturer on legal analysis and bibliography in the southern law schools, and as law school representative of the company, and doing editorial and advertising work between trips. Verily that semi-migratory existence was more valuable and interesting as an experience than pleasant even in retrospect. But I sandwiched in a trip to England in 1913. In May, 1915, I came to roost at St. Paul as assistant to the president of the company and secretary to its executive committee. Simultaneously I became involved in a plan to organize a battery of field artillery among the younger university graduates of St. Paul and Minneapolis and, during the summer, spent seven weeks attending the elementary school of fire and joint artillery encampment at Sparta, Wis.; since which time, I have lived a strenuous bicameral existence as law publisher and militia man in more or less equal proportions. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of Minnesota, Minnesota Club, University Club of St. Paul, Minnesota Boat Club, St. Paul Association of Commerce. Trustee of St. Paul Academy, Captain, Battery B, First F. A., M. N. G.

Summer, 1907, I made a preliminary survey for interurban electric railway at Hancock County, Me. Fall of 1908 I entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; left at once and went with Amory Browne and Company, dry goods commission merchants; worked in a cotton mill of Nashua Manufacturing Company, at Nashua, N. H., through fall and winter. Since then I have continued with Amory Browne and Company, in their Boston office and am now head of their manufacturing department. When I first received this report to make out, I was smiling and, on being asked why, I said it reminded me of the case of the colored waiter who was asked at a banquet if he could change a $10 bill. He chuckled all over and nodded in the negative and, when asked why he was so jovial about it, he said, "I can't change it sah; but I thank you for the compliment." That's the way I feel about my life history. There seems to be nothing of importance or much of interest to hand in at this time. I am still living the same "hand to mouth" existence—dentistry, so I have some little "pull" now and then, and am practising in Cambridge. For the past five years I have been an instructor in the Harvard Dental School, and at present am a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Dental Society. Two years ago I removed to Belmont to live, and my next move will be still farther out in the country. Member: Massachusetts Dental Society, Harvard Odontological Society, Teachers' Club, Harvard Dental School.

After leaving college, I returned to my family in New York, and in July, 1906, started in as a "runner" with the New York office of Charles Head and Company, stockbrokers, of which William G. Borland, '86, and Dexter Blagden, '93, were members. But I only stayed there until the fall, as I was offered a chance by Winthrop Burr, '84, to go in the bond department of Parkinson and Burr, at 7 Wall Street. There I stayed some four years, going through the panic of 1907 and getting much valuable information. Afterwards I was for a short time with Lee, Higginson and Company, 43 Exchange Place, selling corporation bonds on a commission basis, and then went into the employ of Robert Hoe and Company, at Grand Street, New York (with which Robert Hoe, '00, was then connected), a very large and long-established concern, manufacturing printing presses and circular saws. While there we encountered a severe strike of union labor, which crippled the plant for some time, but was finally settled. This work was not congenial; so in August, 1912, I became associated with Weld and Neville, large cotton merchants. Practically all of these members are Harvard graduates. They sent me to their office in Houston, Texas, to get experience first hand, and I did not return north till the spring of 1913. In the New York office I was on the selling end, selling "spot" cotton to the mill treasurers, and also geting considerable "future" accounts. The cotton business has been considerably restricted by the passage of the "Lever Bill" and also by the outbreak of the war. So when a good chance was offered me by my old friend, Hamilton Fish, Jr., '10, to go into the general insurance business, I felt that I could not afford not to accept, having a wife and young son to support. My son, by the way, gets his name from his great-great-uncle, William Ezra Worthen, '38, a distinguished civil engineer and one of the first vice-presidents of the Harvard Club of New York. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Union Club of New York, Piping Rock Country Club (Locust Valley, Long Island), Seawanhaka Yacht Club, of Oyster Bay, Long Island.

I taught in secondary schools in New Hampshire and New York City during the first year after graduation. In the spring of 1907 I entered the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, transferring in the fall to the National Bank of Commerce of that city. In February, 1909, I was appointed to the Philippine Civil Service, and arrived in Manila early in the following April, where I resided until February, 1915. During that period I was continuously in the employ of the executive bureau of the Philippine Government, in various capacities, but primarily in statistical, editorial and publicity work. I wrote an official handbook and guide of the Philippines, which was published by the government under the title of "The Philippines, the Land of Palm and Pine". I later handled the preliminary work for a proposed new census of the Philippines, which, however, was ultimately given up for lack of funds. In 1914-1915 I served as secretary-treasurer of the Harvard Club of the Philippines. In February, 1915, I left the Philippines on furlough, arriving in this country in June, 1915, after a somewhat extensive tour of the Malay Peninsula, Burma, India, and Ceylon. In August last I accepted a position with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, in Washington, where I am now located, engaged in editorial, statistical and research work in connection with the promotion of foreign trade. I have written: The Philippines, the Land of Palm and Pine, The Philippine Civil Service and What it Offers (North American Review, February, 1912), monographs on commercial subjects for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Since graduating, I have been working part of the time in Cambridge and part of the time in the field at various varieties of zoölogical work. Various parts of this country, the West Indies, Central and South America, the East Indies, and different parts of the Asiatic mainland have been visited in some cases a number of times. I have had the good luck to visit Santiago de Chile as a delegate from the University to the Pan American Scientific Congress, and to attend the founding of the National University of Mexico at the time of Portfirio Diaz's last inauguration, in the same capacity. I have become much interested in the new school of tropical medicine, and am on its faculty. Other University jobs are associate curator in the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy, member of faculty and visiting committee of Peabody Museum, member of council and curator in the university library. I have become much interested in bringing the old museum of the Boston Society of Natural History to a wider usefulness, and am serving on the executive committee and council of the society. I am a director of the International Trust Company, of Boston; I am, for my sins, president of the Harvard Travellers' Club. I am not much of an autobiographer and cannot imagine that anything which I have done could possible interest my classmates. My life has been so far as satisfactory and uneventful as one could reasonably expect. I may add that I am not a neutral but am frankly pro-ally. October, 1908, I left the Western Electric Company to go with Shiras Electric Company, of St. Louis, for which concern I was sales manager. I left Shiras Electric Company in 1910 to go into business for myself and formed Sanitary Sales and Service Company, of this city, jobbers and retailers of all types of vacuum cleaning machinery, which company I am still with in capacity of president and manager. Donald Crassous Bartholomew

Donald Crassous Bartholomew was born at Bloomfield, N. J., October 31, 1882. His parents were Frank Bartholomew and Adele Sanderson. He prepared for college at Stone's School, Boston, Mass., and was in college from 1902 to 1905. He married Florence Judd, at Brookline, Mass., June 8, 1907, and had two children: Donald, born April 5, 1908, and Elise, born June 20, 1912. He left college at the close of his junior year. At that time he was doing cartoon and assignment work on the Boston Post, signing himself "Bart". He continued his work on this paper while accepting a position of assistant advertising manager for Filene Brothers Company, in Boston. He remained with Mr. Filene one and a half years and left that concern to open a general advertising office. At this time he became advertising manager for the White Cross Milk Company, continuing his newspaper work on the Boston Herald, where he produced a popular Sunday comic under the title of "George and his Conscience." In 1909 the family removed to Brookline and he launched a mail-order bookbinding business which he ran for some time. In the fall of 1911 he received an offer from the Newark (N. J.) News and the family removed to New York. Bart remained on this paper several months, when he accepted a position on the New York Globe. He drew and wrote daily articles while on this paper. Bart remained with the Globe until late spring, 1913, and left to join the Associated Newspapers of the Hearst Syndicate. It was the dream of his life some day to write a play and with this goal constantly before him studied and read at every opportunity. In the fall of 1913 he wrote and had accepted his first story: "My Uncle and the Green Parrot". This story appeared in Collier's for October, 1913. His second story was in preparation at the time of his death. The family had removed to White Plains in the summer of 1913, and it was there that Bart died suddenly, December 19, of pneumonia. He illustrated: "The Excuse Book", "The Cook-ed Up Peary-odd-ical", and "Around the Clock with the Bounder".

My connection with the University Press came from the active opposition of certain medical relatives to my desire to become an M.D. like themselves. While in college I had become fascinated with medicine and surgery, chiefly through association with my brother, then acquiring his medical training. The chief arguments of this opposition were that one M.D. in the family was enough, the period of training was hard, long, and expensive, and practice was arduous, often unremunerative, and without freedom. Its fascination and the opportunity for service were the main arguments in its favor. "Business", of any kind, was held up to me as preferable. I cared nothing for business, but volunteered to look into it during the summer following graduation, with the option of entering the Medical School in the fall if it failed to charm. A chance to study the inner workings of the University Press was obtained for me, and immediately after class day I began setting type in the composing room. A growing interest in the work, and even the nominal wage of five dollars per week—something coming in, rather than all going out—served to wean me from the Medical School. I stayed at the Press, working in each department, later becoming assistant to one of the office force, then assistant superintendent of the plant, and later salesman, after six years' experience inside. While competition is keen, and printing can be bought, like clothes, for any price, there is the same fun in securing orders, planning their details and bringing them to a successful finish that there is in any constructive business, with much satisfaction when the result has artistic merit. As assistant superintendent I had the pleasure of assisting in "showing-up" certain officials then in active charge of the Press, resulting in their withdrawal and the later rejuvenation of the plant, both in equipment and personnel. It was perhaps somewhat as a reward of merit that I subsequently became a stockholder and director, and gave up my inside position for that of salesman, as one who comes in direct contact with buyers of printing is called for lack of a better term. Apart from business, these ten years since graduation have seen the events in my life of my marriage, the tragedy of the death of our first baby, the joy and comfort of a second visit of the stork, and the building in 1914 of our house in Cambridge, in which we dwell with much satisfaction.

Mr. Mergenthaler some time before had dwarfed and rendered of little account the voices of men. As for the voices of angels, they had not been heard for several hundred years; much less received fashionable approval. So, when Harvard College, with infinite charity, handed me a bachelor's degree in 1905, I decided to go in for printers' ink. I have been of that persuasion ever since. Joining the staff of the Springfield (Mass.) Union in the summer of 1905, I continued with that newspaper till the spring of 1907. Since then I have been connected with the Cleveland Plain Dealer in various capacities, latterly as city editor.

Immediately after graduation, in June, 1906, I began work as acting editor of the Harvard Graduates' Magazine, holding this office during the six months' absence of the regular editor, Mr. W. R. Thayer, in Italy. In September, 1906, I was appointed assistant in English at Harvard, and after Mr. Thayer's return gave all my time that year to teaching. In September, 1907, I entered the Harvard Graduate School, and for the two college years 1907-1908 and 1908-1909 combined work as assistant in English with studying for the Ph.D. degree. For the year 1909-1910 I held an Edwin Austin fellowship, so did no further teaching, and spent most of the year writing my doctor's thesis. I received the degree of Ph.D. in comparative literature in June, 1910, and at the commencement exercises that year was one of the speakers, and also marshal for the Graduate School. In September, 1910, I came to Minneapolis as assistant professor of rhetoric in the University of Minnesota. While holding this position, I began writing for The Bellman. In the summer of 1912, while I was acting head of the English department in the summer session of the University of Minnesota, I was offered the position of managing editor of The Bellman, and from June, 1912, to June, 1913, I divided my time between this work and my professorship at the university. In the spring of 1913, however, I definitely decided to give up teaching, and resigned my university appointment. In January, 1914, I was elected vice-president of The Bellman Company. The Bellman, now in its tenth year, is published in conjunction with the Northwestern Miller, the trade journal of the flour milling industry, also a weekly, which has been running forty-three years. In July, 1914, just before the outbreak of the European war, we reorganized the editorial department of the Northwestern Miller, and I was appointed managing editor, retaining my position with The Bellman. In January, 1915, I was elected a director of The Miller Publishing Company. In October, 1914, The Northwestern Miller, through its editor, Mr. W. C. Edgar, undertook to raise from the millers of the United States and Canada a cargo of flour to be sent as a gift to the destitute people of Belgium. The steamship South Point was chartered for this cargo exclusively, and in March, 1915, six thousand two hundred tons of flour were delivered in Belgium as an absolutely free gift, transportation included, from the millers of America. Mr. Edgar personally superintended the distribution of this flour in Belgium. I was so fortunate as to be closely associated with him throughout the whole period of raising and transporting this shipment. Of late my time has been about equally divided between flour milling and literary editing, my previous training in philology proving about as valuable for one occupation as for the other. Since writing my "life" for the sexennial report, I have joined the vast army of "struggling" attorneys, and, just like a good many of them, am fighting for an existence, hoping against hope that some day I shall be a real "lawyer", and not merely a "member of the bar". As it is now, my daughter, just two and one-half years of age, is the only person who looks up to me as being somebody; in fact, she says that she wants me to be "her only husband". Can I say any more now? No. But wait.

Arthur Campbell Blagden

Arthur Campbell Blagden was born in New York, N. Y., April 22, 1884. His parents were Samuel Phillips Blagden and Julia Goodman Clark. He married Lydia Lawrence Mason Jones in New York, June 22, 1908, and had three children: Cornelia Waldo, born September 16, 1909; Margaret Wendell, born August 13, 1911; and Lydia, born December 22, 1912. Blagden prepared for college at Groton School, where in his last year he was Senior Prefect, or head of the school. In college he kept good books about him and read them. He studied hard; for exercise, played football on the second eleven, ran, boxed, and played squash. He represented the university in an intercollegiate debate. His judgment upon undergraduate affairs was much sought and had great weight because, although in our day counsels were often divided, everybody had faith in Blagden. He was elected class orator for the commencement exercises. In 1909 he was graduated from the Law School, where he had been a leading member of his class and an editor of the Law Review, and began practice in New York in the office of Messrs. Cary and Robinson. The firm subsequently was changed to Cary and Carroll and in due course Blagden became a member of it. In politics he was a Republican until 1912, when he became a Progressive. He always considered it a duty to take an active part in politics, and this he did to the extent permitted by the exigencies of an absorbing professional practice and a growing family. It was characteristic of Blagden's high sense of public duty in general that the last act of his life was attendance at the military training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., in August, 1915. Blagden was a director of the Brearley School, to which he devoted much time. In college he was a member of the Sphinx, Porcellian and Hasty Pudding Clubs, the Institute of 1770, and the Signet Society. He was a member of the Racquet and Tennis and Harvard Clubs of New York and the Tuxedo Club. In the death of Blagden we have lost one of the strongest and truest men in the class. His interest in its affairs was unfailing and he could always be counted upon to devote thought and labor to them. Probably no man in the class enjoyed such unanimous respect and affection. His understanding of other men and his sympathy for them, even although he did not agree with their ideas, were enormous. As an organization we shall sorely miss his leadership and sound judgment; and for us personally there cannot be repaired the loss of the sense of strength that came merely from knowing that there was among us Arthur Blagden with his stubborn principles of right and honor. Blagden died September 8, 1915.

In June, 1906, I opened a real estate office at 60 State Street, Boston, specializing in the subdivision and improvement of land for residential purposes. In connection with this work, I established offices in New York, Jacksonville, New Orleans, and Buffalo, making main headquarters in New York and Boston. Business conditions during the past two years have made it more profitable to concentrate my efforts around Boston. My official position is treasurer and general manager of the Bonelli-Adams Company, a corporation in which I now own and control the majority of stock. I am living in Brookline and my summer home is at Squirrel Island, Me., where I have spent every summer since graduation. At Squirrel Island I have taken an active interest in tennis, trying to increase the importance of our Southern Maine State Tournament. Last summer I was elected presi-

The most important factor in my life since coming to New York City, four years ago, is a steady pursuit of my work in architecture, more especially in the office of Roderic B. Barnes during the past two years. I have also had some work of my own, which it is, of course, my object to obtain. Besides using the pencil I have taken up the pen to publish in the last two years several articles—mostly criticism—in the "Architectural Record" and more recently in "Country Life in America". While this literary work is a side-issue, it interests me greatly and will be pushed in the future as far as time and opportunity permit. Naturally the matter of most profound interest to me as to everyone else is the great war. Ever since the first year of my two years' study and travel in Europe in 1910-1912, I predicted that a conflict involving all Europe was an event likely to happen at a few weeks' notice. Consequently I was to a great extent mentally prepared for it, and many of its manifestations were no surprise to me—particularly the sublime heroism of the French. I have written a series of three articles in July, August and September, 1914: Some Early Dutch Houses in New Jersey, December, 1915; The New Addition to the Harvard Club of New York, December, 1915; Country House of H. H. Rogers at Southampton, Long Island; Two Houses at Southampton, Long Island (Architectural Record, January, 1916); and Informal Fireplaces (Country Life in America). Member: Harvard Club of New York, Bergen County (N. J.) Historical Society.

QUINCY ADAMS BRACKETT

Occupation	Electrical Engineer.
Address	(home) 226 East End Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
	(business) Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., East Pittsburgh, Pa.

I did not leave college till 1907 as I stayed an extra year to get an S.B. degree in electrical engineering in addition to my 1906 A.B. The summer of 1907 I had one last long vacation at the summer home of my folks at Southport, Me., near Boothbay Harbor. Late in September I entered the engineering apprentice course at the Western Electric Company, in New York City, and joined the New York Harvard Club. The panic of 1907 ended my apprenticeship rather suddenly, as I was given a regular position in the engineering department in line with the policy of letting the expensive men go and using cheaper ones. This was in January, 1908. I was attached to the physical laboratory and most of my work was in connection with the so-called "Pupin loading coils'' for long distance telephone circuits. Toward the end of the summer of 1908 I resigned and went into wireless telegraph work, still in New York City, as assistant to Dr. Lee de Forest, of wireless fame. This was going back to an old love, as I had been one of the very first wireless enthusiasts at college. I spent two years with De Forest, trying my hand at everything from engineer to factory superintendent and even sales manager. This was the time when the first workable wireless telephone was being developed, and when an entirely new system of wireless telegraph was displacing the old original systems; so the work was very interesting. In September, 1910, I left the wireless field to enter more reliable commercial fields, and took a position in the engineering department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, at East Pittsburgh, Pa., where I still am. Here I have continued my past practice of being mixed up with the more or less unusual and outlandish classes of apparatus rather than the motors, dynamos, etc., that most electrical engineers have most to do with. Following my previous telephone and wireless work, I have gradually acquired charge of mercury arc rectifiers, lightning arresters, choke coils, ozonizers, condensers and such special apparatus. More recently I have come back into the wireless game by taking charge of such matters along that line as the Westinghouse Company may from time to time get interested in, although we are not now in that line of business regularly. To the uninitiated I might explain in my own defence that ''lightning arresters'' does not mean ''lightning rods'', but apparatus for protecting electrical power stations from any sort of abnormally high voltage on their lines and may take the form of apparatus ten or twelve feet high and weighing several tons. In October, 1911, I married Ruth Wilson, formerly of Cambridge, and took a wedding trip to Bermuda. We are living now near the eastern city limits of Pittsburgh, about half way between the city and the Westinghouse factories at East Pittsburgh, twelve miles out. Shortly after reaching Pittsburgh

I joined the Harvard Club of Western Pennsylvania. Although I have been in Pittsburgh now for over five years, I am still hoping to settle ultimately near New York or Boston, where most of my old friends are. In the meantime, however, Pittsburgh isn't so bad after all. I have written various articles on electrical subjects in The Electric Journal since 1912. Member: American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Institute of Radio Engineers, Harvard Club of Western Pennsylvania, Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburgh, Pa., New England Society of Western Pennsylvania.

Children	Francis Hixson, July 10, 1907; John Mason, Aug. 10, 1908; Thomas Baker, Aug. 22, 1910.
Occupation	Teacher of English.
Address	(home) 612 West Ormsby Ave., Louisville, Ky.
	(business) Boys' High School, Brook St., Louisville, Ky.

Before graduation I was offered a position as teacher of English in the Louisville Male High School, from which I was graduated in 1901. This I accepted in preference to a travelling tutorship in France, because Louisville is my native city. I remained in the English department of this school until the fall of 1915, when the Male High and Manual Training High Schools were consolidated under the name of Boys' High School, and entered the new $300,000 building they now occupy. I was made head of the English department in the new school. From the beginning I have coached the baseball teams of the school, in which work my experience on the Harvard team of 1905 stood me in good stead. I have continued to play the game myself in the local amateur leagues, but have never tried it professionally, though twice offered a chance with the Louisville American Association team. I went for two summers to Alderson, W. Va., with some boys from Louisville. A number of college stars and stars-to-be, including Rhett, played on the Camp Greenbrier team along with me. There I felt again the college atmosphere, and from there two or three boys I coached entered Harvard. I keep somewhat in touch with the university, too, by holding the Harvard examinations here. Since my marriage in Cambridge and honeymoon in Europe I have seldom found time to travel, my summers having been spent either in playground work here, in Camp Greenbrier, or in a summer cottage in the woods not far from town. My school work and my family absorb most of my time and energy, and may even prevent my return to Cambridge this year, for our school year will not close till June 19 or later. I hope, however, that I may be able to attend the class celebration, to which I have been looking forward for years. I have written an educational article published in "American Education", poems published in "Judge", "Western Magazine", and local sheets. Member: Harvard Club of Kentucky, Louisville, Louisville Literary Club (ex-member) Athenaeum Literary Association, Louisville, Louisville Educational Association, Kentucky Educational Association.

Class Day, 1906, I started for a three months' vacation in Newfoundland and Labrador. I took the forestry course, 1906-1907, at Harvard. Shortly after graduation I became a member of a new firm of consulting foresters with Richard T. Fisher and Austin Cary, and continued in the consulting forestry business until April 30, 1914, under the following names: Fisher, Cary and Bryant; Fisher and Bryant;

Fisher, Bryant and Olmsted; Fisher and Bryant, Inc. On May 1, 1914, I entered the United States forest service as forest inspector, chief of private co-operation. (The "chief" has no subordinate as yet). In 1908 I took a vacation of some weeks in the schooner Lorna Doone on the coast of northern Labrador and Newfoundland. I have had other vacations that took me to British Columbia, Alberta and Nova Scotia, besides visiting most of the eastern and northern states and the eastern provinces of Canada on business. My present field of work is: the states east of the Mississippi River. Therein I am trying to encourage the private owners of timberland, and other agencies such as the railroads, to do anything that seems to be to their interest that will favorably affect the forest growth on private timberlands. Most effort is now being devoted to owners of coal and otherd mineral lands and to preventing the railroads from starting fires. Member: University Club, Washington, D. C., Harvard Club of Boston.

Since for the third and last time my "life" has been demanded of me, I presume I may as well attempt no further escape from the arduous duty of delivering it. Not long since, however, one B. K. Stephenson passed this way, and offered, in return for said apparently valuable "life", an insurance policy of respectable dimensions. Yet alas! the company which our erstwhile president represented, took a different view,—to wit—that this full-grown, intelligent, college-bred life was no good; in short, unsalable, from the insurance standpoint, and so I offer it to you "free gratis". The poor must work, whether they like it or not; hence I put in the summer of 1906 testing motors at the Lynn plant of the General Electric Company. Following the terrors of this job, I managed to land, through the kind offices of Mr. C. H. Hile, of the Boston Elevated Railway, a "position" as assistant engineer (title may be incorrect) in the office of Mr. Corning, then electrical engineer for the above system. Let me say right here, that Mr. Corning is, or was, the best "boss" I ever had. Working or loafing, whichever he caught us at, his attitude was always the same,—genial and encouraging. It was my good fortune to remain in Mr. Corning's office somewhat over two years. Then ambition seized upon me, and I went as electrical inspector to the State Street office of the Massachusetts Electric Companies (now redubbed the Bay State Street Railway). Would that we could only see ahead of us! The panic of 1907 struck the Hub and the Massachusetts Electric Companies laid off men, cars, and power-plants for the space of 90 days. That was too much for me. I had been saving up—wanted to get married—so, as per H. Greeley's advice, I went West in the guise of a school teacher, after first going to the parson's. Following a year or two of school teaching in Chicago, I began to fear that my knowledge of electrical matters might slip away from me unless occasionally put into practice, and I, therefore, again entered the service of the General Electric Company at Pittsfield, Mass. A year and a half later I found a raise and a better job, with Stone and Webster,—that mecca of aspiring engineers and (underpaid) draughtsmen. Truly the work there, designing power-plants, was interesting; and the experience, lasting. I believe I could start work there again tomorrow without a hitch. After two years with Stone and Webster, the "wanderlust" seized me again, and with it a desire to re-enter the atmosphere of the public school. I found the atmosphere satisfactory in Fitchburg, where I have been situated since 1913. Member: A. F. and A. M.

I emigrated to the wild and wooly West in the July following graduation and found it wild enough but not by any means wooly. My first efforts to provide myself with the latest in socks, etc., was at the business end of a shovel at a point about 2500 feet below the surface of the earth. I was quite successful at this occupation and progressed through the different stages of the mining business until at the end of five years of western travel and hard application of the back muscles, I found myself in possession of a half-interest with another Harvard graduate in a hole in the ground on the edge of Death Valley. This hole was supposed to contain gold in large and copious quantity; but after digging out about $1000 worth of this quantity it was full of powder smoke and other unsalable things, not to mention a rattler and a few scorpions, etc. I stopped chasing the fickle goddess at this time and took up the building business and am now applying some of the knowledge of human nature gained in the West in handling men in the building business. I spent four years with a large construction company in Boston and had the pleasure of assisting in some of the construction of the Harvard Club and of the new Freshman Dormitories. I am married and have two children, one of whom will one day be a Harvard graduate himself.

After leaving the Law School in 1909, I went abroad for a year, visiting the Far East, including India, China, and Japan. Returning home in the fall of 1910, I began grinding for the New York bar examinations, which I passed in April, 1914, and was admitted in June of that year. Thereupon I formed a partnership with Philip S. Campbell, of our class, and was associated with him until he died, in August, 1914. After practising alone until May, 1915, and getting heartily sick of it, I formed a partnership with Paul Kieffer, Law School, 1906, under the firm name of Carleton and Kieffer, which is still doing business at 52 Broadway, New York City. In April, 1913, I married Emma C. Brombacher, and now have two lusty young sons who should help puncture the Eli line about 1935. There is nothing exciting in all this, because nothing exciting has ever happened to me. Politics don't interest me, my one experience as a councilman in Haverhill, Mass., having been enough of that for me. In fact, being a family man takes about all my spare time. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Knickerbocker Field Club, of Flatbush, N. Y.

I held this position until September of the same year, when I was ordered out of doors by the doctor. I worked on a farm until July, 1906, when I went to work for a cut-sole house in Boston. I remained with them one year until July, 1907, when I came to Haverhill and engaged in the leather business on my own account. I remained in this business until January, 1912, when I sold out a finely-paying business and started to manufacture shoes. I met with fair success in this business until January, 1915, when three failures in a row put me down and out. I entered Harvard Law School in 1905; visited Europe in the summer of 1906; was graduated from the Law School in 1908. I entered the law firm of Castle and Withington in October, 1908, eventually becoming one of the partners. I toured Canada in 1909. Ran for the territorial legislature on the Republican ticket in 1910. Headed the ticket and represented the fifth district in the House of Representatives, serving as chairman of the judiciary committee, Legislature of 1911. Toured Europe in 1912. Went down with the rest of the Republicans in the Democratic landslide of 1912. Direct violations of the Democratic Baltimore platform by the Wilson administration in regard to the sugar tariff, on which Hawaii depends solely, led the Republicans to come back strong in 1914, and the G. O. P. that fall swept the territory. Chosen as one of the Republican candidates for senate under the direct primary, and elected in the fall election; served as chairman of the judiciary committee of the senate in the legislature of 1915 (still a member, as the term is four years); introduced and put through the Workmen's Compensation Act, based on the Uniform Act. Three times a member and once chairman of board of liquor license commission for city and county of Honolulu. Pitcher and manager of Punahon team, winners of Oahu league championship, 1914. Champion, singles, tennis, Territory of Hawaii 1908, 1910, 1911. Doubles champion 1911. President Hawaiian Tennis Association. Climbed two mountains in Hawaii in 1915 for exercise, 13,675 feet high and 13,825 feet, respectively. Director in the Honolulu Rapid Transit and Land Company, Honolulu Gas Company, Kahului Railroad Company, Henry Waterhouse Trust Company, Alexander, Baldwin, Hawaiian Pineapple Company and other corporations. Intend coming to the decennial unless the sugar tariff is beaten in which case I shall probably work on the road. Member: University Club of Honolulu, Chiefs of Hawaii, Honolulu, Beretania Tennis Club, Honolulu, Hawaii Polo and Racing Association, Honolulu, Harvard Club of Honolulu.

I visited South Dakota, Nebraska, and Wisconsin, where I made a study of the health conditions of the red men on the reservations. In January, 1913, I accepted the position of bacteriologist in the Boston Board of Health. In 1914 I was promoted to assistant director, and in 1915, to director of the bacteriological laboratory. Owing to the reorganization of the health department, the position of director was substituted by a senior bacteriologist, which position I now hold. I fear my doings since leaving college may seem rather prosaic to those with whom I have not been in contact for several years. I have been busily engaged in endeavoring to make a success of my occupation during business hours, but have found time for a considerable amount of recreation at other times: bowling a good deal in winter and playing at tennis in the summer; during the last couple of years

I have inhaled quite some fresh air and other kinds behind the steering wheel of a roadster. Coming to the Prudential without friends I have been satisfied with my progress, though hoping that the gates will still continue to swing open ahead as time goes on, or rather that they can be pushed open if sufficiently shoved! I have taken quite some interest in the Prudential Insurance Company Athletic Association. I was one of the organizers and president for the first three years of its existence. In my business and social life I have drifted almost entirely away from my classmates, though we meet occasionally in the New Jersey or New York Harvard Clubs, the former occurring only about three times a year, and the latter not very often,—New York seeming a long way from Newark when there are close interests at hand. Auction bridge is an interesting game when played among the same set several nights a week, isn't it? I have grown neither fat nor thin during the last ten years; don't contemplate immediate matrimony, though I hope to cross the Rubicon some day, and trust every one in the class has enjoyed the first ten years out as much as I. My connection with the class of 1906 was very slight. I was merely a special, taking courses in landscape design in the department of landscape architecture, practically all of the school year 1902-1903 and part of 1903-1904. I did post-graduate work and received no degree. Had been graduated in 1888 in civil engineering, S.B., Massachusetts Institute of Technology. I practised municipal engineering, parkway and boulevard work from 1889 to 1901, in New England and Middle West; business and nurseryman, 1901; special student at Harvard in 1902-1903 and part of 1904; private practice as landscape architect and consulting engineer, 1903 to date. From 1903 to 1906, Boston and New England; 1906 to 1914, Boston summers, California winters; 1914 to date in practice at San Francisco. Designed private estates in New England and California; parks at San Jose and Fresno, Cal.; boulevard system Santa Barbara. In the summer of 1912, I spent three months studying abroad in England, France, Italy, and South Germany. Occupation	Mining Engineer.

Address	(home) Beaufort, S. C.
	(business) Dover, N. J.

I left Harvard the middle of my junior year, partly because the Massachusetts Institute of Technology seemed a better place to pursue mining, and partly because the dean and I could not see things from a common ground. I finished the course of mining at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1907 but did not receive a degree until 1908. I spent two years gaining practical experience at mining, throughout the West. In 1909 I took a position as mine superintendent of a mine in Zacatecas, Mexico. I was very successful in bringing a mine in bad shape into a prosperous condition. The outlook was so bright that I came to the United States and married, expecting to spend at least several years at that mine. The revolution soon drove us away as it became unsafe for my wife there. Since leaving Mexico in 1912, I have been a rolling stone, with a four years' stroke of bad luck. I worked as miner, etc., gaining experience, was mine foreman of a gold mine in Canada, and another in South Dakota; then held the same position for the New Jersey Zinc Company at Franklin, N. J., for two years. I am now occupied in developing and exploiting a line of electric stoves of my own get-up.

From August, 1906, to September, 1913, I was employed as a mathematician in the actuarial department of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston. In 1913 the state legislature enacted a law providing for the establishment of a contributory retirement system for public school teachers along insurance lines. The Teachers' Retirement Board, composed of the state commissioners of insurance, banking, and education, elected me as its secretary in October, 1913. This position I held for over two years and watched the retirement system grow from a membership of nothing to a membership of over 8,600 teachers. This retirement system is one of the few teachers' pension systems in the country that is on a sound financial basis. In December, 1915, the state insurance commissioner offered me the position of examiner and chief of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau in his department, which position I now hold. My duties are to act as deputy and assistant to the commissioner in matters pertaining to the premium rates charged by insurance companies for workmen's compensation insurance. As business has occupied all my time since graduation my outside interests have not been numerous. I have served as auditor and trustee of the First Baptist Church, Salem, a member of the association which revised the city charter of Salem, and am an officer in a Masonic lodge. For six years I served in the National Guard in the Second Corps of Cadets, M. V. M. In 1910 I visited England, Scotland, Wales, Belgium, and France, and in 1913 took a honeymoon trip to Bermuda. Member: Boston City Club, Boston Baptist Social Union, Masonic: Essex Lodge, F. & A. M., Salem, Mass., Washington R. A. Having completed the requirements for my degree at the end of my junior year, and being too shy to enter the "Fellowship of Learned Men" unescorted, I returned to Cambridge to specialize in metallurgical chemistry, taking my degree with the class. Directly upon leaving college, I entered the mills of the Lackawanna Steel Company, at Buffalo, N. Y., putting in two years at "one week of days, and one week of nights", with twenty-four hours every other Sunday, for good measure. During these two years of existence, I became turn foreman of the light rail and structural mills, and later assistant superintendent of the blooming mill. While thus engaged, our mills produced a large portion of the structural steel used in the construction of the Boston Elevated, as well as the steel sheet piling used in the building of the coffer-dam, preparatory to raising the United States battleship Maine from the mud of Havana harbor. Both these jobs required specially designed shapes, and many a bad hour was spent in our efforts to obtain the same. The Elevated demanded a round cornered channel bar, which was to form a portion of the upright supporting columns, running from the sidewalk to the overhead structure. The object of this peculiarly shaped section was to minimize the effects of accidents to pedestrians and horses. Should any of the "Naughty Sixers" while celebrating the decennial of Harvard's "Greatest Class", in an exuberance of spirits (?) embrace, more or less violently one of these columns, I feel sure he will admit, next morning, that the Lackawanna Steel Company was the original and only pioneer in the "Safety First" movement. In 1908, I was transferred to the engineering department, as assistant in charge of the fabricating work, a field into which our company had just entered. In 1909, I left their employ to follow experimental work in connection with the electro-metallurgy of iron and steel, at the Worcester plant of the American Steel and Wire Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. While thus employed, my work covered the installation and operation of a 10-ton Heroult electric arc furnace, producing high-grade steels. This furnace ran for about a year and some very valuable data were obtained. Upon the completion of this experimental work I was transferred to the sales organization, where I have been ever since. The construction of the Panama Canal and the European War have presented some very interesting engineering problems, in the consideration of which I have had a humble part. While in Worcester, I have found some relaxation in politics, serving three years as ward chairman, and "stumping" Worcester County during the 1912, 1913 and 1914 campaigns. After having done "my bit" at 11 hours days, and 13 hours nights, I was "some authority" on the mutual benefits to be derived from the establishment of eight-hour shifts in all continuous industries. Member: Worcester County Republican Club. The Worcester County Fish and Game Association. Worcester Harvard Club.

EDWIN ROY COLPITT

Born	Pleasant Vale, N. B., Canada, Dec. 4, 1881.
Parents	Albert Thomas Colpitt, Laura Elizabeth Steeves.
School	High School, Somerville, Mass., and High School, Everett, Mass.
Years in College	1902-1906.
Occupation	Farmer.
Address	South Main St., Berkley, Mass.

During my last year in college my health failed me to such an extent that I decided to give up my college work,—at least for a time. So, leaving without completing the A.B. requirements, very near the close of the academic year, I struck out in farm work on an uncle's estate in Fayville, Mass. A year later I went to work for my parents on a farm, which they had bought in West Acton, Mass. The expiration of four years found the farm sold and me on my way to the Canadian Northwest "to make my fortune". But I did not count on homesickness. It took only two weeks to arrive at the conclusion that old New England was good enough for me. It is now "going on" five years since "getting back", and about all that time I have been in the farming business with my father in Berkley, Mass., a few miles from Taunton.

ARTHUR MAYHEW COOK

Born	Laconia, N. H., March 25, 1883.
Parents	Addison Gardner Cook, Harriet Stanwood Hathaway.
School	Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N. H.
Years in College	1902-1906.

Occupation	Forester.
Address	(home) 135 Academy St., Laconia, N. H. (business) Forest Service, Steamboat Springs, Col.

After leaving college, I went directly to the Yale Forest School, and completed a course leading to the master's degree in forestry. As the most direct way of getting into forestry practice at once, I took the civil service examination for a position in the department of agriculture in the spring of 1908, at Sylacauga, Ala. Being successful, and attracted by the opportunity of working and living in the West, I accepted an offer of appointment from the department in July, and was assigned to active field work on the Medicine Bow National Forest, with headquarters at Saratoga, later at Laramie, Wyo. After rapidly going through a period as a tenderfoot, and being considered as fairly adaptable to the unique conditions of plain and mountain life, an appointment was given me as deputy supervisor of the Hayden National Forest, with headquarters at Encampment, Wyo., in the summer of 1909. Here, the technical work of the forest in connection with timber and land surveys was given me. The chief business of the forest was, however, administration of large sheep and cattle ranges, and I worked into this as rapidly as possible. The next year, my experience was thought sufficient to successfully handle the Arapaho Forest in Colorado, as forest supervisor. My work there until the fall of 1913 was almost wholly administrative, but in connection with the carrying on of technical and scientific work, and forest organization. As an added opportunity for experience and influence in my profession, I took an associate professorship in forestry in the University of Wisconsin during the winter of 1913. The position carried with it a connection with the state forestry department as assistant state forester. The work in Wisconsin carried me pretty well over the vast areas there now desolate, once clothed with timber of great value, and the basis of many of our characteristic mushroom fortunes. In Wisconsin I had the good fortune to be associated with, and under, as state forester, a Sheffield Scientific School man, Edward M. Griffith. An opportunity to re-enter the government work in the West, combined with an approaching political upheaval, induced me to leave Wisconsin in the fall of 1914, and I came thence to northwestern Colorado as supervisor of the Routt National Forest, where I live in Steamboat Springs. My work here is now largely administrative. in connection chiefly with the use of a government "estate" of nearly a million acres by thousands of cattle and sheep, and development of the territory yet further to make its large resources available.

At the time of the sexennial reunion, I had just completed my first year's experience as a superintendent of schools. I have been at it ever since. And some young life for a peaceful citizen, too! I remained at Easton, Mass., one year more, resigned before they could fire me or murder me, and came to more congenial fields of labor, where the people were less conservative, and where they doubled my salary, praise be! Here at Solvay, we fight illiteracy, pediculosis, and Italian itch, politicians, booze (43 saloons in a village of 7000 people), and the unsanitary conditions of the crowded tenements (the beds are often used by three men on eight-hour shifts corresponding to those of the factories). We are conducting a most interesting social welfare movement by means of the public school system. Day, afternoon and evening, summer and winter, school days and Saturdays find social and educational activities in operation throughout the school system. There are now three children in our family and, thank God! they are all sound and strong. Each summer finds them at the seashore, and each summer finds me at Harvard or Columbia. I hope soon to give up the struggling, cynic-making, bickering work of school administration. I shall do so, when some university values me highly enough to pay me sufficient salary to support decently my family. I have prepared: Easton, Mass., School Reports, 1911, 1912, 1913, Solvay, N. Y., School Reports, 1914, 1915,

I left college in 1904 at the end of my sophomore year and a week later was plugging away in a commercial paper broker's office in New York City. Aside from changing firms once, I have been in the same line continuously, during the early years of my business experience travelling extensively on the road and unlearning everything taught me in college. About 1,000,000 miles will come near covering the distance I've been in 12 years. In recent years I have graduated from the road to New York City banks with spasmodic business trips south. Whenever I get a few days to myself I am off to sea somewheres, for the call of the sea not only has me by the throat but has seeped to the very marrow of my bones. I have two regrets in life: one that I refused my Annapolis appointment and went to Harvard; the other that I didn't study medicine. I have lost count of the number of times I've been to Bermuda, Panama, and West Indian islands, and some day when I get cash enough I am going to shake the dust of New York City from my feet and beat it for the Southland, preferably Bermuda, whose only objection is that nobody speaks Spanish there. I have had one illness which nearly finished me and another experience at sea which came near doing for me likewise, if it had not been that an Englishman, unlike the majority of his race, thought and acted at the same time. Sometimes when I am out with the world, I wish he'd been typically English, but then when I see some of my married friends, I cheer up decidedly. Recently have been putting my shoulder to the wheel and trying to assist in the re-establishment of the American merchant marine and you who may read this, feeling, as you no doubt do, the essentialness of a large navy, tell your friends that no matter how big and efficient a navy may be, it is utterly useless—so much junk without a merchant marine to back it up—as would be your automobile without gasoline. Friends I have scattered all over the world, many of them fighting at the moment, to protect the United States from Hunnish aggression, which the United States itself under its present administration does not seem to have "guts" enough to do. And, from my cosmopolitan friends I've learned the secret of happiness,—to be able to do something for somebody else no matter how great the personal sacrifice may be. I completed the work for A.B., June, 1905, and then took history and education courses for the A.M. during the year 1905-1906. I had postponed the degree so as to get it with the class, but later changed my mind and took it in March, so as to have it as an asset when I applied for teaching positions. I had intended to be a doctor, but changed my mind, as it would take too long to get there. The first year out I did not know what to do. I entered the automobile and other business, but found no job. Finally I went with the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad as a rodman. I should have said that there were teaching positions and others away from Boston; but at that time I did not want to leave here. I worked one year civil engineering with the railroad and the experience has helped me some in my physics teaching. I think it would be well for a fellow to spend a year or two working in the world after say his first year in college in order to find out what he likes and can do. I then took a teaching position at the Lowell Textile School, where I taught organic and inorganic chemistry, qualitative analysis,—a good variety of work, lots of it, but good experience. I then came to Boston in the English High School. The first year I taught physics and chemistry, the second year and since I have had all physics. Member: Zetland Lodge of Masons, Boston.

Until March 11, 1914, I lived the life of the average bachelor, plodding along in business with a little travel, golf, etc., stirred in to break the monotony. On the above date life took on a new complexion with my marriage, and things have been looking up ever since. My wedding trip took me to the Riviera, northern Italy, Switzerland, France, and England, with a week in Paris with my brother-in-law, R. M. Gallagher, '06, and his wife. I have since built a house in Milton, Mass., where I am now living, pictures and plans of which may be found in the November, 1915, issue of The House Beautiful. Due to the high cost of living I have dropped from all clubs but the Milton Club. I found the Harvard Club of Boston the essence of luxury at $40.00 per year, with the privilege of an occasional $4.00 dinner, as I found I couldn't use it but three or four times a year; and I should like to say right here that I have heard the same sentiment expressed by several Harvard men living out of town and whose business does not admit of their using it during the daytime.

After leaving Cambridge in June of 1906, I was advised by my physician to try to regain my lost health by an extended holiday in Europe. After a brief visit to Montreal, Canada, I spent the entire summer touring in Great Britain, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and France. During my stay in Europe I was offered a position in Chicago, and, upon my return to the States, I went out to Chicago; but. not caring for the city or the climate, I returned to my home in Brooklyn, and accepted a position with the Turner Construction Company, of New York, where I remained for a year, and I next served as civil engineer and supervisor of construction for Ditmars and Brite, architects, where I remained for three years. On the first of January, 1911, I was elected a director and vice-president of McDermott and Hanigan, building contractors, of New York. On January 1, 1916, I became a stockholder in the firm of Baillie and Johnson, Inc., specialists in concrete construction, and became the secretary to the company on the same day. I am now New England agent for Hart and Crouse Company, of Utica, N. Y., manufacturers of boilers, with office at 68 Devonshire Street, Boston. I was married, on the thirtieth of April, 1912, to Gertrude Martense Vanderveer, in the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, in the town of Flatbush, Kings County, N. Y. I left college in May, 1903, to enter the employ of the Boston and Maine Railroad, in the capacity of rodman. I remained there spasmodically until July, 1904, filling in periods, laid off with various jobs with the Cheney Box Factory at Lowell, Mass., and the Estabrook and Eaton Shoe Company at Nashua, N. H. I left the effete East for the wild and wooly West via the Grand Trunk Railroad in July, 1904. I disembarked at Milwaukee and found employment with the Allis-Chalmers Company and later on with the Nordberg Manufacturing Company of that city. In July, 1906, I returned to Concord, N. H., in ill health and accepted a position as master at St. Paul's School, in which capacity I served six years. I left there in June, 1912, to take a position with the F. E. Wing Motor Car Company, of Boston as salesman. February, 1914, I left the F. E. Wing Company, to go into business with the Pathfinder Sales Company, of which I was treasurer. ROBERT MONTGOMERY DOLE

Born	Philadelphia, Pa., June 13, 1884.
Parents	Nathan Haskell Dole. Helen Bennett.
School	Roxbury Latin School, Roxbury, Mass.
Years in College	1902-1906.
Occupation	Assistant in the Weather Bureau.
Address	(home) 91 Glen Road, Jamaica Plain, Mass.
	(business) Rosenwald Hall, University of Chicago. Chicago, Ill.

After drifting around in various positions I decided to enter a line of work that interested me. In 1908-1909 I worked in Filene's Sons Company, in the purchasing department. From 1910-1911 I was with the New England Magazine, and later two small weekly papers which failed; I hope I wasn't a hoodoo. At any rate scientific work was more in my line, so I was sent to Washington, D. C., as an assistant in the Weather Bureau, in May, 1912. I spent an interesting and wonderful six months in the Virginia Blue Ridge where wild strawberries were so plentiful one could have a pint every meal, where flowers and birds were next to nature. Here we flew kites into space, as high as six miles, and investigated what the elements were doing up there by means of a recording instrument, which gave pressure, temperature, wind velocity, and humidity. In December, 1912, I was sent to the wonderful little city of Charleston, S. C., where real southern manners and hospitality abound, and it was a most pleasant year and a half by the sea, amid picturesque old southern homes, with plenty of sunshine and a civilization of 100 years ago. Then I went to an even finer little southern city, Raleigh, N. C., where there are the finest people in the world, and the loveliest girls, where everyone loves music and nature. It was with real grief that I left the little capital city with so many friends and moved once more, this time to Chicago. Chicago is the centre of many of the world's greatest activities, and the Weather Bureau maintains a large and important station, issuing forecasts for eleven states. The work is intensely interesting and it is a place of bustle and hustle all the time. The Weather Bureau opened up a station in the University of Chicago with a complete outfit of instruments and at present I am located in the university, looking after the equipment. I have written: Le Petit Trott, from the French (not published yet), Why I left the Jesuit Order from the German (not yet published). Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of Chicago, American Meteor Society, University of Virginia, Astronomical Society of Mexico, German Meteor Society, Bremen, Germany.

There is nothing in the life of a young structural engineer to make him especially prominent in society, and my life so far is no exception to the rule. There is plenty of responsibility; but the compensation is only moderate. From 1907 to 1910 I was assistant engineer in the office of J. R. Worcester and Company, Boston, and helped in the design of many engineering works about New England, one of the most conspicuous being the Charles River Viaduct, used by the Boston Elevated Railway Company. I then removed to Washington, D. C., and took a position as structural engineer in the office of the supervising architect, Treasury Department. Part of 1912 was spent in Boston designing bridges for the Boston and Albany Railroad Company. I returned to Washington that summer and resumed my former position, which I have held continuously to date. Member: Washington Society of Engineers, Washington Harvard Club.

Following graduation in June, 1906, I was engaged as instructor in Romance languages, first at the University of North Carolina, the year following at Clark College, Worcester. The interval between these academic years was spent in study abroad, principally in Paris and vicinity. At that time I travelled considerably in England and on the continent. I regarded this teaching engagement as but temporary and at an early date decided to adopt the banking and brokerage business as a permanent profession. Early in the summer of 1908 I entered the employ of Hornblower and Weeks, of Boston, and have been associated with this firm ever since. Except for a few months of special training in statistics, etc., I have been connected, in salesmanship capacity, with the bond and investment securities department. I do not anticipate making any early change from this present occupation, which keeps me most of the time in Boston. However, in the last year or two I have found it necessary to spend considerable time in New York. I have managed to keep up a continuous interest in athletics, principally golf and tennis in the last few years. My travelling since 1908 has been confined to this country, and in summer months I have made numerous automobile trips through the eastern states. Member: Wellesley Country Club, Wellesley, Mass., Winthrop Tennis Club, Winthrop, Mass.

I did not graduate, having left college to begin my law studies at Boston University Law School in Boston. After completing the full regular course, I received the degree of Bachelor of Laws, and was admitted to practice upon passing the Massachusetts bar examinations in September, 1906. While at the law school I became interested in public debating and was chosen on the Boston University debating team that defeated Georgetown University. Since my admission to practice I have been actively engaged in the trial of cases in state and federal courts. The most important thing I have done since I left college is to marry a woman of excellent charm and character. In 1910 and 1911, I became interested in politics in Boston and was an unsuccessful candidate for the legislature. I have since felt the consolation that the time thus saved and devoted to my practice has largely contributed to my success at the bar. I have contributed various short articles to magazines. Since 1909 I have been teaching law at Pei Yang University, where I am now chairman of the law department and librarian. I have been associated in this work with I. L. Sharfman, '07, W. A. Seavey, '04, J. A. Crane, LL.B. '06, and G. J. Thompson, LL.B. '12. The president of the university is T. L. Chao (Chunta T. L. Chao, '09). We teach English and American law, following the methods of the Harvard Law School, comparing our systems of law with those of the continental European countries. Perhaps the most interesting stunt that I have done was the taking of a carload of 32 American men, women and children in the summer of 1914, without change of cars, for 17 days, from Changch'un, in central Manchuria, to Eydtkuhnen, in Germany,—about 5500 miles,—at a total cost, including food, of about a cent a mile. I think this is the world's record for time, distance and cost. I am at present director of the American Mechinery and Export Company and of the Sino-American Industrial Company, both companies being engaged in the China trade. I have recently commenced work as vice-chairman of the American Red Cross Committee in China for the distribution of aid to military and civilian German, Austrian and Turkish prisoners of war in Siberia. The chairman of the committee is R. A. Burr, of the class of 1904, and the secretary is the wife of G. J. Thompson, Harvard Law, '12. We work in co-operation with the Swedish Red Cross and, together with them, try to take care of the needs of about 400,000 people, including many families. After completing my college courses in 1907, I entered the banking business with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, New York City. After four years, finding I was at the business world too strenuously, to the detriment of my health, I gave up the struggle for riches for the time being, and travelled abroad for several months. During my travels I visited the southern European countries, arriving in England in time to participate in the fox-hunting with the Hertfordshire fox-hounds. On my return, in the fall of 1912, I entered the automobile business, but owing to financial conditions previous to the war, the truck our company attempted to place on the market did not meet with much success, and we soon disbanded. I then returned to the financial world and am now connected with the Equitable Life Assurance Society, 120 Broadway, New York. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Squadron A Club, N. G. N. Y.

In the summer of my senior year I went abroad for a trip of several months and on returning to this country entered the publishing business with the American News Company, of New York. The following year I changed occupation, for a time, to real estate; and then in 1911 to general insurance brokerage, in which I am now engaged. I am a member of Squadron A, of the New York National Guard, and I also acted as secretary of the American Field Ambulance Association, which, in October, 1914, helped to organize the motor ambulance corps under Francis Colby, '05, and Gardiner Hubbard, '00, now serving back of the trenches of the allies in Flanders. If it were possible, I would like to report other activities; but life in the metropolis is so highly specialized it is hard to escape the rut of routine except when Sid. Becker strikes town. Robert Louis Stevenson said "earn a little money and spend a little less", but Robert Louis lived in the Samoan Islands. Speaking of activities, the foremost Harvard effort in New York is the newly enlarged home of the Harvard Club. It is so successful that I recommend that 1906 men urge other cities to do likewise. Member: Harvard Club, Underwriters Club, Squadron A Club, University Glee Club, all of New York.

I left college at the end of my junior year. My grandfather and father had been physicians and teachers of medicine. So I thought I might as well try to follow in their footsteps. After I was graduated in 1909, I became a medical house officer at the Massachusetts General Hospital for sixteen months. It was the best fun I ever expect to have.

The hospital was alive with the best traditions. There were patients who were one's own, and there were tolerant and wise visiting men who smiled at one's mistakes or tempered just criticism with kindly advice. There was a delightful intimacy among the men in the hospital at that time. When I went in, P. D. Lamson, '05, was senior on our service, T. G. Brigham in our class at the school was just ahead of me, and W. S. Parker, '06, was my junior. It was a wonderful sixteen months of close relationship with men whom one respected, and of hard work with responsibility adjusted to the breadth of one's shoulders. I felt that I needed more training before I began to practise. So in 1911 I went to Johns Hopkins for a year as a voluntary worker in experimental medicine. I learned a different point of view there, a considerable amount of medicine, and how to attack a given problem with a certain degree of intelligence. The Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston was scheduled to open in 1913. Dr. H. A. Christian offered me a position there, first as house officer and then as assistant resident physician. Of course I accepted. The summer before I went there I spent abroad, living for a month in Tübingen, where I became acquainted with German medical methods. Dr. Christian assembled his staff in Boston in December, 1912. We moved into the hospital on March 31, 1913, and had our first formal ward-rounds. It was a proud day for us. I lived at the Brigham for two and a half years. I had an opportunity to work at various clinical and experimental problems which interested me. I lived so close to disease and saw so much of it that I could not help learning a little more about it all the time. I was busy every day and all day,—the ultimate criterion of a man's happiness. It is a mistake to live too long in one place. I applied for a job at the hospital of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and was appointed an assistant resident physician last October. Here I am in New York living under ideal conditions for learning how to study and treat disease. I am still trying to get better trained and prepared. Member: Tavern Club, Boston, Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York, American Association for the Advancement of Clinical Research.

Address	(home) 11 Shady Hill Square, Cambridge, Mass. (business) Emerson Hall, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

I have continued to teach in the department of social ethics at Harvard. In 1913 I was promoted to an assistant professorship. Upon the retirement of Dr. Peabody, early in that year, Professor Ford and I took over the conduct of the course "Social Ethics 1" which our predecessor had for many years given as "Philosophy 5"—the first course of a department, established in 1906, which has continued to grow both in courses and in student enrolments. In 1912 I was appointed by Governor Foss chairman of a commission to study the question of the dependency of widows' families. Our report was presented to the legislature in January of the following year. In the spring, after a considerable fight, a measure providing a system of "mothers' aid," based partly on the commission's bill, was enacted. During the summer of 1913, in an absence from America of six or seven weeks, I journeyed, via the Azores, Madeira, and Algiers, to Sicily, Calabria, and Basilicata, regions in which I had become interested in a study of Italian emigration; I returned via the Tyrol, Switzerland, and France. The summer of 1914 I spent largely in Cambridge, doing a piece of work for Dr. Mackenzie King in connection with the department of industrial relations newly established by the Rockefeller Foundation. In these several years I have maintained connections with various social and philanthropic enterprises. In 1915 I became engaged to Miss Lilian Hillyer Smith, Radcliffe 1915, of Forest Hills, Mass, subsequently of Princeton, N. J. After our marriage, we expect to settle, in the fall, in No. 11 Shady Hill Square, Cambridge. I have written: Report (majority) of the Massachusetts Commission on the Support of Dependent Minor Children of Widowed Mothers (Boston, 1913). Member: Colonial Club, Cambridge, Harvard Club of Boston, American Economic Association, American Association for Labor Legislation, American Statistical Association.

Occupation	Mining Engineer.
Address	Tyrone, Grant County, New Mexico.

My life from graduation to date has differed but little from the corresponding years of men of my profession, that of mining engineering. The most interesting, because most novel, part of this period of probation, was the three years spent in Mexico. Life there was very easy and more or less haphazard, not very healthy condition of affairs for the unsophisticated. Shortly after my marriage I left Mexico and, after a year spent in New York, went to Bisbee, Ariz., where I remained two years, leaving there in 1912 for Tyrone. During these ten years I have done everything around a mine there is to be done except manage one and I must say there has been a good deal of fun connected with all of it. At present I am chief engineer for the Burro Mountain Copper Company. Member: New Club, Edinburgh, Scotland, Harvard Club of New York, Rocky Mountain Club, New York City, American Institute of Mining Engineers.

I was graduated in 1905, as of 1906, and the next year, 1906, I received the A.M. degree. After a tour of Europe in the summer of 1906, I settled in Munich, Germany, for a year's work at the Royal University. The two years following (1907-1909) I spent at the Harvard Graduate School, continuing my classical studies. In the fall of 1909, I became instructor in Greek at Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa. In 1911-1912 I held the first appointment at Harvard University as assistant in Greek under the provisions of the system of exchange of members of the faculty entered upon by Harvard University with four of the leading Western colleges. On April 12, 1912, Walter Houghton, Jr., was born at Newton, Mass. At commencement, 1912, I received the degree of Ph.D. in classical philology from Harvard University. My thesis was concerned with the works of the poet Ovid and discussed questions of the text history of the amatory poems. Its title, "De Carminum Amatoriorum Ovid textus Historia." A summary is published in the Harvard Studies in Classical Philology for 1913. The year 1912-1913 I spent at Grinnell College as instructor in classics. Following my return to Massachusetts in June, I was appointed head of the department of classics at the Trenton High School, Trenton, N. J., where I have been employed ever since. NORMAN BEAUMONT FRENCH

Born	Canton, Mass., April 4, 1884.
Parents	Charles Henry French, Teresa Isabella Noyes.
School	Roxbury Latin School, Boston, Mass.

Years in College	1902-1906.
Degrees	A.B., 1906.
Occupation	Bond Salesman.
Address	(home) 950 Washington St., Canton, Mass.
	(business) 68 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

Since writing my last class life I have continued in the stock and bond business, and have settled down with Earnest E. Smith, Harvard, 1902. Mr. Smith specializes in New England securities, and holds forth at 68 Devonshire Street, Boston, under the caption of Earnest E. Smith, Inc. I hold no specific offices of honor or trust, but feel that all who know Earnest will feel my connection with him is honor and trust enough. Summarizing my previous class life, after graduation in 1906, I entered the employ of Willett and Company, wool merchants, at 248 Summer Street. In the spring of 1907, partly for reasons of health, I left Boston for Evanston, Wyo., and began work on a sheep ranch, known as the Neponset Land and Live Stock Company, situated mostly in Utah. There I rode horseback, dug postholes, ran the supply store, harvested, and did all kinds of ranch work. In the fall of 1907, having a time limit ticket to Chicago, I decided to return home to Boston, and, on arriving in Chicago, found the first evidences of the 1907 panic. I had brought little cash, but had a check on a bank in Evanston, Wyo., and, although I was identified by friends in Chicago, the bank would not cash it. I was due in New York the next day, to visit my classmate and old roommate, Seymour M. Peyser, and had only about $20 in cash. I finally picked out the cheapest road, the Erie, for $18, which took two days, and in that time I subsisted mostly on sandwiches, arriving in New York with twenty-five cents. All was well when I reached Seymour's house, and he cashed my check without suspicion. After a very pleasant visit, I returned to Boston, and in January, 1908, went with the Old Colony Trust Company. After a year and a half with the Old Colony, I was advised to enter the bond business, and started in with Trowbridge and Niver Company, of Chicago. While with them I went out west again, visiting Denver, Salt Lake City, Boise, Idaho, and a water-power property on the Snake River in Ore. In July, 1910, the concern failed, and since that time I have sandwiched in a year as a contract agent of the New England Telephone Company, a year with Lewis Brothers and Company, bond dealers, who later liquidated, a year or more with Thompson, Towle and Company, stock brokers, who, soon after the outbreak of the European War, also liquidated. I then spent a year with Jackson and Curtis, stock brokers, before going in with Earnest Smith. I am still single, and live in Canton, but expect very soon to become a benedict, probably in June, after my decennial, if that is permissible. Member: Harvard Club of Boston.

Since I left Cambridge I have been active in corporate affairs and finance. The panic of 1907 and its resulting period of depression had affected me to a certain degree. Nevertheless, I have practically weathered the storm and the outlook is exceedingly bright and encouraging. I have many burdens, but they are pleasant indeed. Large families should be encouraged, as they are conducive to health, wealth and happiness. Last year I spent some time in Newfoundland on business and pleasure. I have visited the maritime provinces on previous occasions during the past five years. Following graduation I decided I did not care to go into medicine as had been planned for me and secured a position as travelling salesman for C. A. Cross, of Fitchburg, wholesale grocer. I did the regular work there and during the summers worked in the different hospitals in Boston, including the Carney, Massachusetts General Hospital, and Free Hospital for Women. I was graduated from the Medical School, or rather finished my work, on May 29, 1910, and on June 1 I sailed from New York. This carried me through to May 1, 1912. I was married on June 20, 1912, and following my wedding trip I came to New Bedford, where I have been since. As I completed the requirements for my degree in 1905, I took advantage of a year's leave of absence to enter the Law School, from which I was graduated in June, 1908. In October of that year I came to Buffalo, entering the law office of Rogers, Locke and Babcock, where I remained until March, 1912. I then became associated with the firm of Hoyt and Spratt, which connection continued until November, 1915, when I formed a partnership with Charles Pascal Franchot, LL.B., 1914, under the firm name of Gilbert and Franchot. In the summer of 1906 I visited the Canadian Northwest, returning by way of Seattle and the Yellowstone. In 1907 I visited Germany, France and Switzerland. I practised law in Boston till March, 1912, then came to Cruces, and have been here, more or less steadily, since. I have been joined recently by Evan Fraser-Campbell, and we expect to start for Villa any day now. I dropped into Columbus the day after the raid, with two 45s and a 30-30, and did much to restore public confidence. I discovered later that the ammunition I had brought along with me wouldn't fit any of my artillery; but that did not hurt the moral effect of my appearance. I have joined the New Mexico mounted police, and am afraid that some day they will ask me to try to ride a horse.

After commencement in 1906, I went to Europe for three months on a pleasure trip. In September, I entered the Harvard Law School and remained there a little over a year, until November, 1907, every day becoming more convinced that I would not be satisfied to make the law my profession. On November 18, 1907, I secured a position as messenger in the First National Bank of Boston. I worked in the various departments of the bank till the first part of 1911, when I was made assistant to the president. In July, 1911, I made a business trip, visiting the chief business centres of Europe in the interest of the foreign exchange department of the First National Bank. In December, 1911, I was offered the presidency of the Brookline Trust Company, which I accepted and at the same time was made a director. In November, 1912, I became engaged to Miss Nora F. Thayer, of Lancaster, Mass. In December, 1912, I resigned as president of the Brookline Trust Company to make a trip to South America for the First National Bank of Boston, to study the banking conditions and possibilities there and establish banking connections. January 2, 1913, I was married and my wife accompanied me on my South American trip. We were gone about six months, visiting several of the larger cities in Brazil and the Argentine. During my absence, I was made a vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, which position I now hold, having supervision of the foreign department in addition to other official duties. On our return from South America, we lived in Andover, Mass., for two years, but are now living in Needham. In January, 1916, I was elected a trustee of the Warren Institution for Savings of Boston. After finishing my college course, I spent the rest of the year of 1906 at home, resting from my arduous scholastic career. I went to work the first of 1907 for a small mining and manufacturing company as assistant manager. The prospects did not seem especially bright toward the end of 1907, so I went to work the first of the next year for the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, which is managed and controlled by my parents, my father being the president and general manager. I have worked for this company ever since, now having charge of a portion of the manufacturing and advertising, and the whole of the purchasing for the company. My occupation is not so much a labor as a pleasure, and I feel very well content with the way life is treating me. I can find little to say about myself. My days are spent in entirely congenial work,—my evenings almost entirely at home. I have few worries or anxieties, and my thoughts are pretty largely centred on playing the game of business as efficiently as I can. I have done some travelling since graduating; made pleasure trips to Newfoundland, the Azores, Egypt, Palestine, Greece, and other points usually touched by tourists through the Mediterranean; Bermuda, West Indies, Jamaica, Panama, etc; the Pacific coast, visiting California and other places of interest. In brief, I am slipping quietly, and I hope not ungracefully, into peaceful middle-age. Member: 32d degree Mason, Knights Templar.

Commencing with the year 1909, after the acquisition of degrees reciting the receipt of a college education and certifying to a subsequent period of seclusion in the realms of legal lore as the same are contained in and about the Harvard Law School, the autobiographer is able to recall a further period of learning wherein the chief element concerned research among some features of the practice of law which a law school does not instill. For two years a leading firm of his native village bore with him. Thereafter, in the fall of 1911, there came the opportunity to try out on the younger generation that certain species of experiment which from his early infancy an older generation had tried out on him. The experiment is commonly described by the term teaching or the phrase pedagogy; the subject matter concerned contracts and equity and the experimentees were students in the Law School of the University of Minnesota. The subject matter is mentioned because the impression it made is recalled to have been considerably stronger from behind the desk than, at an earlier day, from in front of it. Intermingled with the profession of the pedagogue was that of the lawyer—to such an extent as was permitted by the exigencies of the case and the trustfulness of clients. The period of pedagogics continued until 1913. In the midst of this period—in 1912—the shingle with one name affixed thereto was hung on the door and on the door it still sticks. These I should say are the important historical facts in connection herewith. There has been no dabbling in college affairs except in the post of secretary of the University Club of St. Paul for five years; nor in literature, except briefly as secretary of the Harvard Club of Minnesota; nor in politics, except in an effort to upset the charter of the city, thought to be unsound; nor in religion, except to attend church; nor in charity, except in helping reorganize, and in serving as a member of, the board of directors of the United Charities of the city; nor in pure food, except for a year and a half as a part of the then job, in assisting the government in an effort to stop the bleaching of flour with nitrogen peroxide gas; nor in travel, except in journeying twice to the Atlantic and thrice to the Pacific; nor in the drama, except in a seat in the third or fourth row; nor in athletics, except in playing golf; nor in the war, except to read the newspapers; nor in marriage, except to be married; nor in kindergartens, except in the person of William Grant, Jr. Member: University Club of St. Paul, White Bear Yacht Club.

I still hold these positions. I became assistant city attorney of Berkeley in 1910, and in 1911 became city attorney. I resigned that position several months later, when the socialists came into power. In February of this year I became special counsel for the city of Berkeley. I have been specializing in municipal corporation law, but in addition have a general law practice devoted mostly to special retainer work from several large corporations. I have only been back to Cambridge twice since graduation, but enjoyed to the utmost meeting old friends on those trips. The three days' session of the Associated Harvard Clubs here last fall also enabled me to renew many old associations. Married	Loretta Madeline Spelley, Southern Pines, N. C., Feb. 24, 1909.
Address	Gramatan Court, Sagamore Road, Bronxville, New York, N. Y.

Leaving college after my junior year I collaborated on the score of a musical comedy with John Cheever Goodwin, famous as the librettist of Wang, Monks of Malabar, and other successes and incidentally a Harvard graduate of the class of 1873. Goodwin's rapidly failing health did not quite permit the termination of the book, so I returned for my fourth and last year, 1906-1907. I almost completed the year when ill health caused me to forego the finals and much to my regret did not enable me to round out my academic term. After leaving college the most important event was the usual, —matrimony,—and I then entered upon the varied career of conductor of musical comedy; first in vaudeville, where I conducted big acts of tabloid musical nature such as "At the Waldorf", "The Love Waltz", "Cavalleria Rusticana", and others, supplying many times the songs and scores. Later on legitimate musical comedy claimed my attention and I experienced the vicissitudes of "one nighters" and their early and late jumps, where the vernacular of the stage became as familiar to me as to any of the "hams." During the seasons on the road we touched all the high and low spots on the continent, from lower Florida, Texas, and California to the jumping-off places in Canada, Prince Albert and Edmonton, where many times the thermometers in the towns all "go broke" like the itinerant actor and they have to import more. Of course we got the good with the bad, and the big city like Chicago or 'Frisco acted like tonic to faded, train-racked nerves. I also found that anything constitutes an orchestra from a jewsharp to an accordion, and that bad musicians on the one nighters were as often good blacksmiths, horseshoers, cobblers, and hackdrivers as well as bank presidents, selectmen and town "Pooh-Bahs." But these were only a few of my trials. How I hate scenery! During the summer respites composition claimed my attention and I wrote for the Dolly Sisters, Yansci and Rosizika, one of their first songs, "Lovely Eyes," —interpolated by them in "The Midnight Sons"; also songs for Little Miss Fix It, "When Dreams Come True," "At the Waldorf", and other interpolations and instrumentals. Member: Associated Musical Conductors of America, New York, Lawrence Park Country Club, Bronxville, New York.

I left the Boston Journal when Frank A. Munsey sold this paper and became associated with the Butterick Publishing Company of New York as advertising representative in the New England territory, and I am permanently located with them. This year completes my seventh year as head coach of the Harvard University second football team under the Haughton coaching system. This work has been a source of great satisfaction and personal pleasure to me, because of the success with which the Varsity teams have met during these years, and because of the part which the second team has taken in making this success. A remarkable "esprit de corps" is manifested among players and coaches at Cambridge today, as well as a keen knowledge of the game, both factors which were lacking during our years at college, but which I can say with assurance have made a decided change for the better, as many of us witnessed during the christening of the Yale Bowl at New Haven in 1914, and further evidenced by the complete victory recently seen at Cambridge, resulting in the score of Harvard, 41; Yale, 0.

I entered Harvard in 1902, intending to study landscape architecture, but owing to trouble with my eyes, I was compelled to leave. 1903 found me at Denver, Col., where I entered the employ of a cattle concern, but I found that chances for advances there were slim; so I left there and attempted the study of gold mining, entering an assayer's office. In the meantime I made a visit to my home in Massachusetts. Home and the East appealed to me more than the West, so I entered the employ of Phipps, Durgin and Cook, attorneys, at Boston. Here I studied law evenings, followed up delinquent debtors, acting sometimes as private detective, constable, and in several other ways, so as to be useful around a law office. The salary here was not attractive, so I secured a position with a real estate broker. I made several good sales of country property. My employer at last decided to retire and become a farmer, so I again made a change, now entering the employ of Albert H. Waitt, of 45 Milk Street.

In the fall of 1910 I came to New York to work in the legal department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, on questions of public regulation of rates, and of public service companies. I left in July, 1911, and, after a short trip to Europe, did some research of my own on similar questions, and continued this down to the summer of 1913, interrupted by a month or two again in 1912 with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, assisting in the compilation of a book of decisions of public service commissions, and also by a couple of months, 1912-1913, working for the committee of National Civic Federation on the regulation of public utilities. I spent the summer of 1913 in Europe, part of the time continuing the study of public service commission decisions. February, 1914, I entered Columbia as a candidate for the degree of Ph.D., passing the examination for the same in May, 1915, in economics. Dissertation, still uncompleted, embodies work done on utility regulation problems. 1915-1916, teaching two of the sections in elementary economics in Columbia College.

When I left Cambridge in June, 1906, four years of bookish accomplishment, crowned with a summa cum, behind me, almost as a matter of course I took to teaching, though my inclinations were in far different directions. The first place I landed was in a small rural college in Lebanon Valley, Pa., where I enjoyed the resounding title of professor of English language and literature, and chairman of the English department—this latter "department" by the way, consisting besides myself of a young lady who dusted the books in the library, and the boy who emptied my waste-baskets. Here, for vital reasons, I stayed but a single year, and have never known such academic dignities since. In the seven years that followed I have led a nomadic career through a wide variety of educational institutions—a course decidedly barren of any lasting scholarly success, but rich in what I value far more highly—insight into human life in all sorts of conditions. My last engagement was a most happy one in a superior private school for the boys of "our first families"—where my scholastic duties were entirely secondary to such matters as the regulation of baths and the correction of table manners. Here, as elsewhere, I have learned far more than I could ever teach, and, what is of equal importance, I have, in the passing of years, laid by something to enable me to engage in one of the luxuries of my life,—literature. But in this art I have as yet no appreciable accomplishment to record. Always fascinated by everything pertaining to the stage and acting, I have, in the last few years, found opportunities to take some practical part in the professional producing and acting of plays.

Address	Care of Jesus College, Oxford, England.

Giant Grim met me at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass. (I am writing this at a safe distance in England.) It was that snowy morning when Dean Hodges (long may he live and prosper, he and his) announced in chapel that "Ivanhoe" had won the coveted seminary prize for the best essay on Japanese Shintoism. That $100 was too costly a matter. I got the money and was branded. I can hear their tender voices singing amid the cat-calls: "Who say dem niggers wont steal? Way down yonder in de corn feal." I wonder if in 1916 the men who study at the Episcopal Theological School are different from those who in 1907 branded me with the twin fiery nods of song and silence, all except three,—one of these a millionaire,—who said a few words of congratulation to me. Giant Hutle followed me that year to England. At the end of 1908, I took two out of three certificates in anthropology, completing the work for the diploma in 1909, when I was graduated B.A. with honors in theology. My Harvard degree won me exemption from responsions and moderations, so that I entered Oxford without any examination and took the distinctions mentioned in two scholastic years. Curiously enough, I went from Jesus College, Oxford, to Jesus College, Cambridge, in 1909, to be examined by Dean Foakes Jackson, on behalf of the Honorable the Lord Bishop of Peterborough. During the three days of the "Diaconate" ordeal, I was asked by the dean where I had learned to write a rigorously "briefed" answer to a question in liturgics. Harvard, not Oxford, was the responsible university; and the dean "took it out of me" for not going from Harvard to Cambridge. My next ecclesiastical examinations were taken at Lambeth Palace, and they were "terrors" in more than repute. But I passed and was ordained priest by his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, and deliberately wore my Harvard hood in Canterbury Cathedral on that occasion in 1911. The M.A. was taken in 1914 when the Prince of Wales was still a Magdalen undergraduate. Since that war year, I have been rejected from enlistment; but have worked in a munition factory at Faversham; have coaxed a few Tommies into the marriage contract; have made recruiting speeches and established rifle ranges; have collected and sent parcels to our fighting men; and have carried out the Gospel of Harvard Hustle.

Nothing very exciting has happened to me; but, as I am an advertising man, here's copy. I am still with one of the seeming in-town branches of the Harvard Graduate School —the Boston Globe. If there is any institution that has more Harvard A.B.'s from chief bosses down to office boys, your Uncle Dudley hasn't heard of it. I started at the latter office-boy end of the ladder 10 years ago and am not yet the former, although I have filled more jobs on the sheet, I venture to say, than any other youngster on it,—nice, pleasurable jobs such as office-boy, assistant exchange editor, district reporter in the wilds of the red-light district, society dame critic, house-breaking expert (reporting only), general staff man, special story writer, yachting editor, poultry expert, motorcycle race writer, and,—covering fires at 3 A. M., at 10 below zero. Some couple of years ago it was discovered that along with my other abilities, I was a hypnotist who could extract money from people's pockets while they all the time were thinking the frisking was all at their own behest. Ah, welcome to the advertising department was I. And there I am as an automobile advertising solicitor. .No, nothing exciting has happened except getting married and having a wife, two children, a dog, a cat and some kittens to look after me. I am a governor of the Bay State Automobile Association. Member: Masons.

From October, 1907, to June, 1910, I was a student at the General Theological Seminary, New York City. From June, 1910, to June, 1911, I was curate at St. Ann's Church, Morrisania, N. Y., and associate minister at St. Martha's Chapel, Bronx. July, 1911, I was made rector of Christ Church, Tarrytown, N. Y. 1912 to 1914, I was president of the Ministers' Association, Tarrytown, N. Y. 1914-1916, I was treasurer of the Junior Clergy Missionary Association. My most interesting work has been the effort to transform a conservative, exclusive, "Sleepy Hollow" church into a community church which would meet the needs of the community through the emphasis and practical application of social service ideals. Not only the church but the town was opposed to any progressive work; but we have a plant and workers second to none in the town. Our ideal, and, we hope, practice, is to co-operate with existing agencies as far as possible and avoid all cutthroat methods or policy. In the autumn of 1906, I entered the Harvard Law School, where I remained for the usual three years. I was admitted to the bar of South Carolina on January 7, 1909, and, immediately after graduation from the Law School, I began the practice of law. Subsequently I became the junior member of the firm of Haynsworth and Haynsworth, of Greenville, S. C., in which I still remain. In a thoughtless moment in the summer of 1912 I became a candidate for the South Carolina house of representatives. At that time the political situation in the state was extremely interesting, though somewhat alarming. At least there was plenty of heat and plenty of action, that well-advertised personage, Cole L. Blease, being then at the zenith of his power. Well, "Colie" was elected and so was I,—but not on precisely the same platform. I attended the general assembly for two sessions, and in October, 1914, we were reconvened in extraordinary session for the purposes of abolishing taxes, mortgaging the state to buy cotton from the farmers, settling the difficulties in Europe, arranging for the repeal of the federal constitution, and attending to a few other trifles. After which I retired very silently from the political battlefield. I return to the game occasionally for the purpose of getting even with Mr. Blease for vetoing all my bills. The rest of the time I have been working. The great break in the routine was my marriage on November 7, 1911. Now, I work at the office six days in the week and then work a little harder on Sundays,—nursing the babies. Member: Poinsett Club and Sans Souci Country Club, Greenville, S. Ever since I left college in 1905, taking with me a degree "cum laude" in three years, and with my face already well set towards that glorious occupation of mining engineering, which combines the greatest mental and physical life, I have had to fight day and night with toil and ill-health. For the toil has been of the deepest and subtlest kind known, the expression of the world's best ideals in perfect form, the form of absolute poetry. By this I mean that I have been struggling to make things seem as they should be, and to express them in that cosmic form where sound and sense, materiality and spirituality are one. This has never been done much in English poetry, and I started originally; so that you will, I hope, excuse me if the results of my toil may still seem small. Yes, it has been only meagre health and daily toil that have kept me apart from you, and may still keep me a little longer —should this war cease—for I have not yet really seen much of Europe, especially Germany. Whilst at Harvard, I never studied a moment more than any of my friends, and consequently my ill-health was not due to that, but to illnesses I had when a boy. I had, indeed, to fight these all through college years, and that not only explains why I could not give myself as much to others' society as I wished, but also why I rejoice at what I have done despite all handicaps. Any letters from anyone would be received with great appreciation. I long, indeed, to take some permanent post at Harvard, where I could be with you or your sons forever. If only the great strain of my work would permit,—but then time may still further mend my health. I have written: Through Dust to Light, Poems from an Apprenticeship, Rose Windows, (Lyrical Poems), The World-Song, or the Fundamental Character of Great Poetry and Art (Prose Essay). Member: only of Harvard Club, and that of the F. X. I. fraternity, of Philadelphia.

I have practised all kinds of law since graduating from the Law School in 1909, and have thus far escaped even a threat of disbarment proceedings. Obviously a list of the other honors which have come to me would appear insignificant in comparison with this achievement, and I will leave it to my Boswell to catalogue them, if they can be discovered. If any are discovered which have accrued prior to this date, then please assign my said Boswell to a niche in history next to Christopher Columbus; he'll have earned it.

After graduating from college I entered the Harvard Graduate School, where I studied economics and acted as assistant in that subject for one year. From 1907 to 1909 I held a travelling fellowship which enabled me to study in Europe. I divided the time between the Universities of Berlin, Munich, Paris, Berne, and London. I returned in June, 1909, for our triennial and to receive the degree of Ph.D. The next three years were spent at Harvard, first as instructor in economics, then as instructor in government. In 1911-1912 I was also secretary of the Massachusetts Association for Labor Legislation, and did some lobbying at the State House for "up-lift" legislation, such as the laws creating the State Board of Labor and Industries and the Minimum Wage Commission. In June, 1912, instead of going to our sexennial, I went to a tuberculosis sanitarium in Rutland, Mass., where I spent several months. In the fall of 1912 I retired to a farm in Warsaw, N. Y., and in the spring of 1913 I spent some time in Colorado and Arizona. In 1912 I had been appointed an assistant professor of government at Harvard and also a member of the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission. I returned to the "Hub" in the summer of 1913 to take up my work again. Meanwhile I had become interested in the Progressive party. I was a delegate to several state conventions, and was chairman of the platform committee for the Bird campaign in 1913. I am still an assistant professor at Harvard and a Minimum Wage Commissioner, although the Republican victory at the last election has made the latter position somewhat insecure. I have written an article on Public Ownership of Telephones. Member: Oakley Country Club, Watertown, Mass.

Since 1906, I have been continuously connected with rapid-transit construction in New York City. I began work with the "sand-hogs" under the East River on the construction of the present subway tunnel between Manhattan and Brooklyn, and when this contract was finished, I spent several years on the construction of the Fourth Avenue subway in Brooklyn. At the present time, I am once again back with the "sand-hogs" under the East River and with "bends", "blow-outs", and the other uncertainties of compresed-air work, find life in New York City to be quite interesting. Recently, I was appointed by the Public Service Commission tunnel engineer in charge of the four tunnels under the East River, which are now being constructed at different points between the Battery and Blackwell's Island. The autumn after leaving Cambridge I went to Waterville, Me., to work in the paper mill of the Hollingsworth and Whitney Company, and remained there until the spring of 1908, when I returned to Boston, and shortly after sailed to Europe to spend the summer. On my return to this country I started to work in the East Walpole, Mass., mill, also a paper mill, of the Hollingsworth and Vose Company. From then until the fall of 1911, I remained either at that mill or at the West Groton mill of the same company. At that date I came into their Boston office and since the November of the following year have been the treasurer of the company. My vacations are usually spent in the Maine woods where I have a small camp on a pond a few miles to the east of Moosehead Lake, and where with few exceptions I have spent a week or two of every fall and spring for the last six or seven years. After spending the summer of 1906 in Europe, I entered the Harvard Law School, where I spent three delightful years, graduating in 1909. At the beginning of the second year I was made an editor of the Harvard Law Review, and on graduation was elected permanent secretary of the class. The summer of 1908 I went to Europe with "Bill" Thayer and gave him my moral support while he obtained an imposing degree from Oxford University. Since graduation from the Law School I have been associated with the firm of Fish,

Richardson, Herrick, and Neave, where my work has become increasingly specialized in the field of patent and trademark law and litigation. It is a rather academic and highly specialized field of law, but not without its interesting side. In connection with my work I have had occasion to travel a good deal and thereby keep in touch with a good many fellows whom I should not otherwise see. In the fall of 1913 I went to California and last spring I was fortunate in going to France where I spent two months. I was in Paris most of the time and also saw considerable of southern France. While I had no real war experiences, it made a mighty interesting trip that I shall not soon forget. I have built a house in Waban, about fifteen miles out from Boston, which offers a pleasant surburban life and beauty spot for children to grow in. There my principal interests are now centred. My first thought was to leave this page blank, because of the paucity of positions of honor and trust held by myself. But my wife reminds me that, as her husband and the father of her small daughter, I have attained to considerable eminence. I admit that therein are the great achievements of my career, since the previous report. Since the triennial report, I have left technical library work, and chemical literature, for the chemical laboratory. In the last six months I have lived in three different states: Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey. Immediately after graduating, in June, 1906, I went to New York City, where I obtained a position with The Autopiano Company, player-piano manufacturers: in October, 1907, I was transferred to the Milton Piano Company, which was then being reorganized under new management to manufacture pianos and players. My association with these two concerns, both of which are affiliated with Kohler and Campbell, Inc., was quite fortunate because the Kohler industries, taken together, represent the largest factor in the piano manufacturing industry from the point of view of output. The development of the player piano with the regular commercial piano proved to be a very attractive field to me, and I was afforded a good chance to obtain a valuable business experience with a progressive concern. In March, 1914, an offer came to me to go to Chicago and become the western manager of one of the subsidiary companies of the American Felt Company. While I was pretty comfortably situated, the lure of "fresh fields and pastures new" was strong enough to induce me to migrate to the Windy City. The change was worth while and I was glad to come in contact with the Middle West and assimilate something of the spirit of business as it is done there. For a year and a half I was specializing in the felts used in pianos and this gave me a chance to see the piano industry from a different angle. In October, 1915, I came to Boston, intending to follow the sales of felts from the general office of the American Felt Company to the entire piano industry of the country, including Canada. This would have made it possible for me to have become more or less of an expert in this line in the course of time, had it not been for the fact that a larger opportunity presented itself, on January 1, 1916, when I was appointed general sales manager for the American Felt Company. I am very much interested in sales promotion, and hope to make a success of my present work. A decade of business experience has taught me many hard lessons, but with them has come the opportunity for activity, growth and service. After leaving college in the spring of my sophomore year, I entered the employ of the Peace Dale Manufacturing Company, of Peace Dale, R. I., as an apprentice, remaining there until the spring of 1906. In September, 1906, I went West and spent about a year and ten months in various pursuits, —worked as a miner in several camps in Arizona and Mexico, worked as a hand on two cattle ranches, travelled into the Canal Zone and South America, working at odd jobs here and there, and also had some coastwise experience in the Pacific Merchant Marine. I returned to Boston in August, 1908, after having contracted the tropical fever, and later entered the employ of Clement, Parker and Company, stock brokers, 70 State Street, Boston. After two years in their office, I went with Hooley, Learned and Company, now Edwin S. Hooley and Company, 21 Congress Street, Boston, stock brokers, where I remained until the summer of 1912. I opened an office of my own at 53 State Street, in the spring of 1914, after spending a year finding out that the automobile business was not such an easy way to add to one's income as many suppose. I conducted a real-estate, mortgage insurance, and brokerage business of my own up to the spring of 1914, at which time I became assistant treasurer and sales manager for B. O. and G. C. Wilson, Inc., wholesale druggists, Boston, Mass. In November, 1915, I became treasurer and general manager and also a director of the Sanitary Supplies Company, manufacturers of paper drinking cups, and other paper specialties, with offices at 53 State Street, Boston, which position I now hold.

I suppose most of us have realized a decided change in our views of life during the last few years since the preceding class report was published; our thought processes are more systematized; our lives are better regulated; and our ambitions more definite. In fact, we have matured more rapidly in the past five years than in any previous corresponding period. I know this has been my own experience,—that I have passed the age when life seems "just one damned thing after another" to a point from which I can get a clearer view of the possibilities the future holds in store. Marriage is the stabilizer in most men's lives. In mine it was not only that but was the forty-two centimeter gun that started me upward. I am still on the rise, in business and otherwise, and am hopeful that I won't reach the zenith of my course and start on the descending curve too soon. The zenith is still some distance ahead, so I am not worrying about shooting past it. I have written: Automatic Regulation of Fire Insurance Rates. Member: City Club of Chicago.

In 1907 I received my A.M. degree, though my years of attendance at college ended in 1906, my senior year having been devoted to graduate study. For three years after my graduation in 1906, I was desultorily engaged in business and newspaper work, and in the summer of 1907 I attended lectures at Columbia University. Between May and July, 1909, I filled temporarily the post of dramatic editor on the Springfield Republican. In September of that year I joined the local news staff of that newspaper, and worked as a reporter until August 1, 1910. From that date until April, 1915, I was dramatic editor, a position which involved some paragraph writing and miscellaneous work of an editorial nature. On leaving that desk I became literary editor, or book review editor, as some might prefer to call it. I am also expected to write occasional editorials.

After graduation I entered the Harvard Law School. While a student there, I was an assistant in government 1, then given by President Lowell, and in the same course, given by him in the Lowell Institute. I was also assistant for two years in Profesor Munro's course on municipal government and for one year in his course on colonial government. For one year I was in charge of the classes at the Prospect Union. The summers of 1907 and 1908 I spent in Europe, learning what I could of the politics and government and looking at the pictures. As a result of good letters of introduction and extraordinarily kind hospitality from the persons to whom they were addressed, these journeys were most instructive. In the course of them I listened from the gallery of the House of Commons to the great debate on imperial preference, in the course of which speeches were made by the leaders of all parties in the House (many of the speakers of that evening are in the present Cabinet). I marched in a very serious English Sunday afternoon procession (quite impromptu) down Whitehall to boo under the windows of the foreign office at Sir Edward Grey for being too friendly to Russia; and I watched all the proceedings of the International Socialist Congress of 1907 at Stuttgart.

An interesting memory of the Stuttgart experience is the vast respect shown at that time and place for Jaures, the great Frenchman whose assassination at the outbreak of the war in 1914 was a tragedy for Europe. Another memory is the smile with which Karl Liebknecht, then under sentence for his book on militarism, in saying goodbye at the close of the congress and promising to see us at the next one in three years, said that he would be spending all the interval in jail. Immediately after the final examinations of the Law School in June, 1909, I was married in San Antonio, Texas, and thereafter in August, 1909, entered the law office of Cravath, Henderson and de Gersdorff of New York, with whom I remained until May, 1915. At that time I became associated with William Osgood Morgan, with whom I am now practising law in New York. The arrival in the course of time of three babies compelled the removal of our household from the Harlem flat in which we originally set up to a house in Riverdale, where we succeed in living in the country in New York City. Our latchstring is always out to members of 1906. During the summers my family is in Little Compton on the Rhode Island coast, leaving me to the hospitable mercies of the Harvard Club and the other summer bachelors. Since graduation I have been blessed with perfect health, a delightful family, and very hard work. The result has been ten very happy years. Not the least cause for this has been the fact that, whether studying in the Law School, practising law in New York, travelling in Europe, spending vacations in Little Compton, or making business journeys, I have practically never been without the companionship of some of our classmates of 1906. Moreover, the work as secretary of the class has been a great pleasure. Member: Executive Committees of Intercollegiate Socialist Society and New York Civil Service Reform Association; Committees on Legislation and on Board of Aldermen of Citizens Union of New York; Committee on Commissions of National Consumers League; Harvard Club, Lawyers Club and Underwriters Club, of New York.

Immediately after graduation, I left for Europe, where I spent the summer in England, reaching Paris in September. As my intention was to study architecture at L'ecole des Beaux Arts I took an apartment in the Latin Quarter and here I spent the next four winters. I travelled during the summers in Switzerland and Italy. Despite 4'Z'arts balls and other revels in the old quarter I managed to get my diploma, incidentally five medals from the government. I was also lucky enough to be "hung" in the Paris Salon. Returning via southern route in 1910 I have since made Boston my home. I began the practice of architecture in the office of Shepley, Rutan and Coolidge and was connected in turn with the offices of Kilham and Hopkins, Allen and Collins, Edward Graham, Peabody and Stearns, and Guy Lowell. Occupation	Physiological Chemist.

Address	(home) Mt. Hope Boulevard, Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y. (business) 278 Yates St., Albany, N. Y.

On leaving college, with high hopes and low finances, to make myself useful in technical chemistry, particularly electro-chemistry, I found, after a year and a half's experience, that the picture I had drawn of technical chemistry was unreal. This was due to the fact that my interest in chemistry was far in excess of my knowledge of it, and that technical chemistry is concerned primarily in making money with the aid of chemistry, when I was interested in developing chemistry by using money. In the fall of 1907 I entered the Rockefeller Institute as a research scholar, and there in biological chemistry I found the mental diet for which I longed. The next year (1908) I became expert analytical chemist for the Remsen Referee Board of consulting scientific experts to the Secretary of Agriculture. Two years later (1910) I resigned, to become research chemist for the Harriman Research Laboratory, Roosevelt Hospital, New York City. At that place I labored five and one-half years in experimental work, the results of which are given in some 25 different papers or communications, published in various scientific, biological, and medical journals. Inquiry and correspondence in regard to my work from all parts of the world have not only encouraged me to continue, but have brought me in pleasant relationships with many professional men. Besides the work, which is always good fun for me, many problems and difficulties were encountered which at times threatened to sink my little ship. Crises arose, when decision was difficult and action perilous both to myself and family. But thus far I have not counted the cost. For example, during my absence from the laboratory, while burying my sister, an assistant to the director trampled on my rights, and because on my return I dared to protest against such injustice, I was dismissed under false charges, and then subsequently slandered. A slander-suit, to which the director filed a demurrer, which was then overruled, is pending in the Supreme Court. Before I get through he will realize that I, like ex-President Eliot, agree with Shakespeare that,

> "The purest treasure mortal time affords
> Is spotless reputation."

After an inactive period of almost eight months I am again at my occupation, having accepted an appointment as physiological chemist of the State Board of Health Laboratory, Albany, N. Y. Being very fond of children, I obtain amusement and pleasure from joining their fun and play, while another great source of pleasure is when my better half and I, after leaving the children with responsible people, make an outing, a lark, or a theatre party, by ourselves. In short, my life since leaving college has had many sunny and balmy days, but also its violent and prolonged storms. I have written twenty-nine articles published in the following journals: Journal of American Chemical Society, American Journal of Physiology, American Chemical Journal, Journal of Biological Chemistry, New York Medical Journal, Deutsche Medizinshe Wochenschrift, Eighth International Congress of Applied Chemistry, International Clinics, Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, and Proceedings of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine. Member Chemists' Club, New York City, American Chemical Society, American Society of Biological Chemists, Society of Experimental Biology and Medicine, American Association for the Advancement of Science.

After graduation in 1906 I entered my father's lumber business in Salem, Mass.; but, after two years' trial, decided to study law. Entering the Harvard Law School in 1908, I completed the course in 1911. Almost immediately after graduation from the Law School, I was married and went directly out to San Francisco, at which place and at Oakland, across the bay, I practised law for two years. Then in the fall of 1913 a call came from the law department of the University of Montana, and, since answering that call, I have been professor of law in that university. As I was East in the summer of 1914 and again at Christmas time, 1915, it is most improbable that I shall be able to attend the decennial celebration. I must perforce join you all in imagination only; but I can and do wish for all of you, who are fortunate enough to be present, the very best of times on that happy occasion. Member: Harvard Club of Montana, Missoula Lodge, No. 13, A. F. and A. M., of Montana, Missoula Chamber of Commerce, Montana.

The year following graduation, in 1906, I remained in Cambridge in the School of Architecture. Thereupon I changed over to the Architectural School of Columbia University, and graduated from there in 1909. During three former vacation periods I had worked in architects' offices in New York City, and now I entered one of these offices. With the exception of more than eighteen months beginning in September, 1910, I have been constantly employed in various offices, engaged upon architectural work of varied character.

During those months mentioned I was in Europe travelling and studying. England, France, Spain, Germany, Austria and Italy were the countries visited, but nowhere did I stay for prolonged or regular study. The five months in Paris went by quickly enough with visits to the museums and galleries, but were too short to permit of my doing regular work in an atelier, or preparatory studio, of the Ecole des Beaux Arts. With the exception of an experience in the state architect's office in Albany, for six months, in 1914, I have been working in New York City. I belong to the company of bachelors (the minority party of 1906 as it would appear from class dinners held in this city). Member: Harvard Club of New York, Alumni Society of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity of New York City, Liederkranz Society, New York.

I have hitherto failed to give any account of my life since the last report simply because nothing has occurred to me or through me, of more than personal interest. I have not held any political offices; I have written no books—nor even a play; I have escaped investigation as a trust. All I can add is that I have continued in the same business,—which is something of an achievement when you consider the commercial mortality rate. I am still married to the same wife,—which is likewise an achievement in the light of the divorce records; and I have a child,—which marks me as incorrigibly old-fashioned. My first job was with the Boston and Albany Railroad, in their engineering office in the South Station, Boston, Mass. Two weeks later I went to work for the Board of Water Supply of the City of New York. The board was created to build the Catskill water supply system for Greater New York. My grade was that of a temporary rodman at first, three months later as a permanent rodman, about two years later as a topographical draughtsman, and in about a year and a half as assistant engineer. Civil service examinations had to be passed before promotion. My duties for the first five years pertained to an office man in a large engineering organization doing construction work; the next two years were spent supervising the construction of one of the shafts and part of the deep Catskill aqueduct pressure tunnel in the Bronx; while the last couple of years were used in carrying on special investigations. Although I completed requirements for the A.B. degree in June, 1905, I now wish that I had spent the next year in college. As it was, I taught in the Quincy, Mass., High School. The pupils were a wild lot, and I learned a great deal from them. It was a year of discouragement, because my ambition had been to teach philosophy in college, and I saw no way to that end. I had not learned—strange as it may seem—that ability has very little to do with getting into college teaching; that the regular road was by way of graduate study and an entirely worthless doctor's thesis. However, the Appointments Office (long may it wave!) found me a position as instructor of English in the University of Colorado; and there I spent two very happy years. (The East is no place for a white man, anyway. Believe me, who misspent my boyhood there). The succeeding three years I spent at Harvard, took my degree in philosophy, and served for a year as assistant in the department. In the fall of 1910 I came to the University of California to teach; and here I expect to be (the gods permitting) until I am made emeritus. Member: Harvard Club of San Francisco.

The first year after graduating was spent in specializing in electrical engineering in the Scientific School, which added a S.B. to the 1906 A.B. Then, in August, I entered the testing department of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, and followed that by the engineering and commercial departments. While there I was an enthusiastic member of the boat club, being captain when I left, and I played on their tennis, hockey, and canoe teams. In September, 1910, I came to the sales department of the Commonwealth Edison Company, of Chicago, and, during the five years here, have been district power salesman, instructor of new men and finally, July, 1914, ice plant specialist, which has developed to a position of assistant refrigerating engineer. The work consists of supervising the operation of twenty ice factories, several packing houses, and numerous power plants. While in Schenectady I helped organize and was secretary of the Schenectady Harvard Club. I have written articles on Rotary Converters and on Economical Operation of Forging Hammers (published in the Harvard Engineering Journal). Member: National Electric Light Association.

In looking back over the time since 1906, sweated in Sanders, in sweet accord, three things bulk large in my mental picture: drafting-tables, Erie railroad trains and lost golf balls at nine dollars a dozen. Returning to the parental roof-tree in the fall of 1906, I started in to find out a few of the things I didn't know about my chosen profession, architecture. I'm still finding out. My labors have been pleasantly varied by the daily trips on the above-mentioned railroad. Since these early beginnings, I have been hard at it, and have worked for several New York architects, especially enjoying my long stay with C. S. Peabody, Harvard '02. I am now with another Harvard man, Joseph H. Hunt, '92. In 1909, and again in 1913, I broke away from the treadmill for good trips in Europe, England, France and Italy, mostly sketching, and soaking up the spirit of the past, nothing dry about that; and incidentally having a perfectly good time. In the last two or three years, I have begun to sign my own name to sundry minor examples of the builders' art (?), which have fallen to my lot to design, and having once tasted blood, nothing satisfies me like more. Last, but not least, I have played a very great deal of very bad golf, with great physical benefit and much pecuniary loss, but with never ceasing zeal and blasphemy. I gravely recommend this most civilized of all vices to the most civilized, I would not say the most vicious, of organized bodies,—1906. In 1907 I became a special partner in Vivanti Brothers, importers of raw silk from Japan. I remained a partner during five very successful years. In 1908 I went to the Homestake Mine in Lead, So. Dakota, and worked in every branch of the mine for eleven months, studying all departments of the mine, which is one of the largest gold mining properties in the country and of which my grandfather, Mr. J. B. Haggin, was president for thirty years until his death. On account

The following is a brief outline of my doings since leaving college in 1906. My first experience in the busy world of business was with the plant department of the New York Telephone Company, in New York City, where I worked for a year, leaving them to go with a company that was building concrete automobile roads and bridges. I was with this company from 1908 until the fall of 1913, being resident engineer for the last two years. Upon completion of that job, I went South as engineer with a refrigerating company interested in the pre-cooking of fruits, etc., for shipment to markets at distant points, and remained with them until the fall of 1914, when the war, which affected southern capital so greatly, forced a temporary reduction of operations. Being thus thrown out of a promising position my ire was naturally directed towards the cause, which I decided was the Kaiser and his hosts; so not seeing my way clear to get him myself, I thought I could perhaps help others to do the trick for me. I therefore joined the American Ambulance Corps in France as a driver of ambulances, and spent a very satisfactory and interesting six months in that service, being stationed at the Whitney unit or Hospital B. From May until September, when I left, I was squad director there and had charge of all cars. Failing to get my enemy the Kaiser after six months of earnest endeavor, I returned to the United States and am now trying another method; namely, the manufacture of military and other smokeless powders on a large scale for the use of the Allies in the field. I am in hopes that this scheme will in the end work out better. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Englewood Field Club, Englewood, N. J., Harvard Engineering Society, New York City.

Occupation	Sanitarian.

After graduation, I studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, being enrolled at first in sanitary engineering and later in biology and public health, in which latter course I received the S.B. degree in 1908. My thesis was a study of the influence of water supplies on death rates, which led naturally to an appointment as biologist to the Typhoid Fever Commission appointed by the Russell Sage Foundation to investigate typhoid fever in Pittsburgh during 1908-1909. I then returned to the Institute of Technology and acted as private assistant to Professor William T. Sedgwick, meanwhile continuing statistical studies on typhoid fever prevalence. In 1910 I was appointed health officer of Orange, N. J., where for three years I had executive charge of the health department, also being active in unofficial anti-tuberculosis and infant welfare work and acting as secretary of the newly-formed State Health Officers' Association and as a member of the State Board of Examiners of Health Officers and Sanitary Inspectors. In 1913 I resigned my position, in order to be able to devote myself to the composition of a work evidently much needed,—a Manual for Health Officers. This proved a much larger undertaking than I had anticipated. I was obliged to finish it during a visit to Europe, most of which was spent in Southern Tyrol (Austria) from May to September, 1914. After returning to America in the hegira from Europe following the outbreak of war, I was able to recover parts of my manuscript which had been caught in England and the book was published in 1915. It is the first in its field and has been favorably received. For the past two years I have been lecturer on public health service at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. At the present time my chief professional interest is in the milk problem, a pressing one in Massachusetts and elsewhere, and I am preparing for publication a study which will probably appear under the title Pure Milk,—A Public Puzzle. I have written: A Manual for Health Officers (New York, John Wiley and Sons, Inc., 1915), various articles on public health subjects. Member: American Public Health Association, Sons of the American Revolution (Indiana chapter) Loyal Legion (Indiana commandery).

Having completed the required seventeen courses in 1905, I entered the Harvard Medical School in the fall of that year. During the next four years my time was pretty completely taken up with the study of medicine and with various hospital jobs during the summers. One job only deserves especial mention; namely, a four months' service as house officer at the south department (contagious) of the City Hospital (Boston). It is worthy of mention only because I was so unfortunate as to spend nearly a month of that time as a patient,—a novel but sufficiently unpleasant experience! In June, 1909, I received my M.D. cum laude. During my course I was a member at one time or another of the following clubs and societies: Phi Rho Sigma fraternity, Boylston Medical Society, Stork Club, Aesculapian Club (undergraduate chapter), and the honorary Alpha Omega Alpha fraternity. In November, 1909, I went on service at the Massachusetts General Hospital as house officer on the south surgical service. After a sixteen months' service, ending in April, 1911, I went on at the Boston Lying-in Hospital for six months more as resident physician. From January to October, 1912, I was studying surgery and obstetrics in Munich, Berlin, and Vienna. These months were full of interest, as between studies I was able to do a good deal of sight-seeing, during which I visited France, Switzerland, Hungary, Italy, Holland, and England, in addition to Germany and Austria. In October I opened an office in Boston, where I engaged in the practice of medicine (specializing in obstetrics) for the next two and one-half years. From October, 1912, to June, 1913, I was appointed alumni assistant in obstetrics by the Harvard Medical School. I have also assisted Dr. Edward Reynolds. On the seventeenth of June, 1914, I was married. The following summer we spent at Asquam Lake, where I acted as physician at the Harvard Engineering Camp, and incidentally had a very good time. Being forced by my health and because of other reasons, we made our home in West Newton, and in April, 1915, I removed my office to 41 Highland Street, West Newton. Since then I have become that much-abused person, a general practitioner. I am in charge of a gynecological clinic at the Free Hospital for Women in Brookline and have just been appointed assistant physician to medical out-patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Aesculapian Club (Boston), Massachusetts Medical Society, American Medical Association, Newton Medical Club.

Having carefully trained myself by special courses at college and by summer work for the railway branch of civil engineering, I now find myself far afield in municipal engineering. I was employed after leaving college, in 1907, by the Northern Pacific Railway long enough to build the Valley City (N. Dak.) viaduct, and get transferred to a reconstruction job at Vancouver, Wash.; but in 1908, I began a three years' service with my country as civil engineer and superintendent of construction in the war department, U. S. A.,—one year at Fort Logan, Col., and two years at Fort Riley, Kan. Ex-President Taft, of Yale, invited me to go to Honolulu, and finally ordered me to Angel Island, San Francisco; and, while I am very fond of angels, I resigned in 1911, to come to Kansas City, Mo., as assistant city engineer. It has not taken all of the past five years, however, to make me an enthusiastic Kansas City man. I like nothing better than to show some Harvard man, especially of the class of 1906, the beautiful parks and boulevards, and the paving, bridges and fine streets which I have had a hand in developing. It is a wonderfully interesting work. Necessarily, I have had plenty of opportunity to study municipal government as it is, and any 1906 man expecting to run for office would do well to engage me as campaign manager. The political campaign of four years ago prevented me from attending the sexennial; but I am hoping that the one this year will turn out favorably so that I can find time to be at the big celebration. I have published in the Engineering News of New York: The Kansas City Municipal Wharf (January 25, 1912), Concrete Pavements in Kansas City (July 21, 1913), Specification for Wood Block Paving (November 8, 1914), Testing of Asphaltic Cements (September 30, 1915) and in the Engineering Record of New York: Operation of Kansas City Municipal Wharf (August, 1914), Maintaining and Repairing Macadam Pavements (December 7, 1914), Thin Brick Pavements in Kansas City (May 1, 1915), Cement Mortar Cushion for Wood Block Pavements (May 22, 1915), A New Paving Crown Formula (October 30, 1915). Member: American Society Municipal Improvements, Engineers' Club of Kansas City, associate member American Society of Civil Engineers.

Bradford Merrill, Jr.

Bradford Merrill, Jr., was born at Philadelphia, Pa., June 27, 1883. His parents were William Bradford Merrill and Sara Louise Taylor. He prepared for college at Farnum School, Philadelphia, and Horace Mann School, New York City. He was four years in college and was graduated in 1906 with the degree of A.B. Bradford was captain of the track team at the Horace Mann School and won several interscholastic medals as a sprinter, but he did not seriously try for the track team at Harvard. I do not think that the predominant traits of his character developed until after his graduation. He worked a few months for the Western Electric Company, and then entered the house of William R. Grace and Company, New York City, leading merchants in the South American trade. Bradford was successively shipping clerk, accountant, correspondence clerk, and, after three years, became the firm's chief representative, receiving its ships from South America at Charleston, S. C., Savannah, Ga., and Wilmington, N. C. He had full power of attorney for the firm in making the financial arrangements for the distribution of entire cargoes, making contracts and drawing sight drafts for cargo importations. He was trustworthy in every relation and was hard at work when overtaken by his fatal malady. In November, 1912, the first serious illness of his life developed into tuberculosis of the lungs. He spent that winter at Aiken, S. C., and in April went to Arizona and California. Finding no relief, he returned to New York in August and stayed at Saranac Lake in the Adirondacks until the end. Unlike most victims of this terrible malady, he foresaw the end before the physicians in charge. But he did not tell any save one what he knew. During his trips to Charleston, S. C., and Wilmington, N. C., for his firm, he had become betrothed to the only daughter of a very prominent Southern family. When he returned uncured from the Rocky Mountains to the Adirondacks, his betrothed and her mother journeyed all the way from the South to see him. His serene courage, wit, and qualities of mind—for he had now found himself—deepened their affection. The young lady proposed an immediate marriage so that she might remain with him, and the mother approved. But the lover sent away the girl he loved for she was a great belle and an heiress and had everything to live for while he, as he said, had now neither health nor fortune nor prospects. He said he could not resist temptation in her presence, but the day after her return to her home to prepare for the wedding, he wrote her that he could not live three months, that he could not permit her to bestow herself upon him when he had so little to give in return. And he asked her to keep the secret he had just told her of the inevitable fatality of his malady from his father and sister who were hopefully watching him in the Adirondacks. Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, "the beloved physician", founder of Saranac Lake, who had long since retired from practice, became almost a daily visitor at the Merrill cottage in Park Avenue, not as a physician but as a friend, because he said he found Bradford "one of the three or four rarest, bravest spirits and finest minds he had ever met". Dr. Baldwin, the physician in charge, did not foresee the end late in December, 1913, when Bradford confided to him and the nurse that the end would come within a week, "but it must not be until after Christmas; you must prevent that some way so as not to make future Christmases black for the family". He died at sunrise one morning a few moments after asking that the pictures of the two women he had loved best in the world—his mother and his betrothed—should be put on the table where his brave and still smiling eyes could look upon them. His epitaph in the Great Neck, L. I., churchyard reads: "Bradford Merrill, Jr., Who Died December 26, 1913, Leaving Those That Survived Grateful to God for Every Remembrance of him".

After graduation, in June, 1906, I entered the offices of C. A. Putnam and Company, bankers and brokers, 53 State Street, Boston, Mass., where I remained until September, 1909. Wishing to try my hand at other lines of work, I decided to go West, and kept on going until I arrived in the extreme Northwest, Seattle, being as far as the train went. Seattle looked good to me, and I obtained a position with the Board of Education, January 15, 1910. In 1913, I made a visit to Boston, and on my return trip visited a number of cities, studying certain phases of the work of the various school boards. On my arrival at Seattle, I was elected assistant secretary, and have been holding down the job ever since. It is a pleasure to work with an organization as well managed as are the Seattle public schools, and we feel that our efforts are well repaid by the excellent showing made by Seattle in all comparisons of the school systems of the various cities in the United States. In 1906, following graduation, I visited Italy, Switzerland and France. Returning to this country in October, I organized the South American Expedition of the Peabody Museum, the members of which consisted of Dr. W. C. Farabee, field director, J. W. Hastings, and myself, ethnologists, and Dr. E. F. Horr, surgeon. Its purpose was to make ethnological studies and collections among the almost unknown tribes inhabiting the head waters of the Amazon in Peru and Bolivia. We sailed from New York in December, 1906. After visiting Lima and Arequipa, Peru, we crossed the Andes over the Inca Mining Company's trail from Tirapata, the highest elevation of which was 16,500 feet, and descended the eastern slope of the mountains. We spent six months on the Tambopata, Madre de Dios, Beni, Mannoré, and Cluapare Rivers, coming out again to the west coast by way of Cochebamba, Oruro and La Paz, Bolivia. A short time afterwards, after having visited Cuzco, Hastings and I were invalided home. I returned to New York via the Straits of Magellan, and Smyth's Channel on the "Cuzco," one of the Grace steamers. We made a leisurely voyage, stopping at many ports on the coast of Chile to load nitrate, and arrived at New York after an eighty-day trip from Callao. In 1909 I went abroad again, visiting Algiers, Egypt (where I fell in with Tom Dougherty), Italy and Germany. I came home in time for the triennial, afterwards spending the summer in Colorado and Canada. In 1909 I entered the New York Law School, from which I was graduated in 1911, being admitted to the New York bar in 1912. I then became associated with the law firm of Niles and Johnson. A severe attack of pneumonia, however, compelled me to give up practice for a time. I then visited California. Returning to New York, I spent January, 1913, on a trip to the West Indies and Venezuela. In September, 1913, I entered the law office of Hawkins, Delafield and Longfellow, of 20 Exchange Place, New York, where I still remain. In 1908 I was appointed a member of the committee to visit the Peabody Museum and a few years later, a member of the committee to visit the University Museum, and have been re-appointed to both these committees annually. During 1912-1914 I was a member of the committee on the development of the port of the City Club of New York, and in January, 1916, I was elected a member of the board of managers of the New York Catholic Protectory, a reformatory for Catholic children with about 2800 inmates. Occupation	Bond Broker.

Address	321 Belden Ave., Chicago, Ill.

After graduating in 1906, I knocked around quite a bit all over the world, and then in 1909 went into the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, of Chicago, in the bond department. Consideration for my parents, and business opportunity, were the factors which determined this choice of locality, for, though born here in Chicago, I infinitely prefer the East and New England. In 1910 I allied myself with the bond house of Rudolph Kleybolte and Company, through their Chicago branch, and in the latter part of 1911 became an independent broker of investment securities and specialties, with headquarters in Chicago. During this year and the two succeeding years my time was about evenly divided between Chicago and Western Montana, where I had considerable interests to look after. Beginning with 1914 I was again principally in Chicago, except for business trips and several cruises to the north country with my wife and children, on our boat. I am planning to have them go to Boston this spring, where in the fall I shall rejoin them, to make our permanent home. This will represent the accomplishment of a long-cherished ambition. As for offices of honor or trust, the only one of my humble services which is worth recording as of possible interest to the average reader, would be the work of despatch boat during drills of the Great Lakes Power Squadrons. On days when the waves are running high and the hiss of the waters mingles with the crying of the low-wheeling gulls, there is enough excitement in this duty to make anyone's blood tingle. This power squadron movement cannot be too earnestly recommended to those members of our class who are power-boat owners and may wish to prepare themselves in a highly pleasurable and profitable way to serve our country in the hour of need. Member: University Club, Chicago Motor Boat Club, First Great Lakes Division United States Power Squadrons, Illinois St. Andrews Society, all of Chicago, Ill.

The first three years after graduating I spent with the Jewell Belting Company, of Hartford, Conn., manufacturers of all kinds of leather belting. Two years of this time I remained in the factory and the third I spent on the road as a salesman. In the fall of 1910 I accepted a position with the Pope Manufacturing Company, also of Hartford, makers of the Pope Hartford Automobiles. For three years I was connected with the office and the factory and then I joined the sales force and travelled for eight months through the South, spending about a third of that time in Texas. After that I acted as a factory representative and attended the automobile shows throughout the East, and also in Canada. In the following year, on the failure of the company, and as I was in ill health, I made a trip into the Maine woods and remained through the winter in a lumber camp. After the "drive" was over in the spring, I returned to Hartford. Since then I have been connected with the New England office, located in Hartford, of Levering and Garriques Company, New York, steel contractors. My time has been about equally divided between the office and construction work in the field. As soon as I received my A.B. degree in 1905, I went to Waterloo, Iowa, and engaged in the retail lumber business with a cousin, under the firm name of the Blackhawk Lumber Company. In order to make the name more personal, we changed it after a year or two to Moore and Moore, Inc. Under this name we have been gradually enlarging our business. We now have four lumber yards at Waterloo, Mason City, Sexton, and St. Benedict, all in Iowa. In connection with our lumber business we engaged in general building contracting for two or three years, but found too much grief and too little profit in this line and abandoned it, taking up in its place sewer contracting. This business we handle under the firm name of the Moore-Sieg Construction Company, with headquarters at Waterloo, Iowa. I made Waterloo, Iowa, my residence until February, 1915, when I removed to Mason City, Iowa. While at Waterloo I was exalted ruler of the Elks Lodge there and ex-officio a member of the Grand Lodge of Elks of the United States. I have only taken occasion to mix seriously in politics once, in 1912, when I affiliated with the followers of our esteemed alumnus, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. Up to the present time my happy state of single blessedness has not been disturbed. I have seen many of the fair sex I could live with, but none that I could not live without. I have been living here in New Orleans since I left Cambridge. I have been manufacturing and exporting "tight barrel staves." As the name indicates, this stock is for liquids and mostly used for booze. Up to a little over a year ago we were principally exporting; but it seems the soldiers are not given their usual allowance, so we have had to devote our time to business in this country. The trade in the United States has been good in alcohol barrels, but I am sorry to say that this alcohol, although used to make explosives, is not for "internal combustion," as "1906" will use it in June.

I did mining engineering work with the Copper Range Copper Company, Painesdale, Mich., from 1905 to 1907. I was engaged in surveying and cyanide and mill construction engineering for Charles C. Moore and Company, San Francisco, Cal. From Mexico I went to Buffalo, N. Y., and joined the forces of the C. M. O. Physical Laboratory, Inc., becoming assistant director under Dr. Charles M. Upon leaving the class in 1905 I went at once to Italy, and the following autumn I enrolled as a commoner of Christ Church at Oxford University, taking the Honour School in History as my subject. The following year I returned to America and, entering the Graduate School at Harvard, received an A.M. in 1907. Immediately after that I entered the Foreign Service, going to Fiume, Hungary, as consular agent, and later Vice and Deputy Consul of the United States. In 1909 I was transferred into the diplomatic service as third secretary and later second secretary of the Embassy at Mexico City. In 1910 I went to Guatemala City as secretary of legation, and resigned from the service in 1911, and in 1913 began to study law at the Harvard Law School, where I am a member of the third-year class. My principal hobby is the study of the early history and genealogy of New England, Virginia and the West Indies, and I have published a number of articles upon these subjects in various antiquarian publications both in this country and in England. My most important contributions were an article upon the New Englanders and Virginians, appearing in the records of the island of Barbadoes in the 17th century, and an account of the administration of Col. Elias Hasket as governor of New Providence in 1702. I have served on the governing board of the National Society of Mayflower Decendants and on that of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society and the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants. Last year, in view of my efforts in historical and genealogical matters I was made a member of the Suffolk (England) Archaeological Society.

After leaving college I entered the Boston University Law School. Here I pursued knowledge until the bursar interfered. A few months later, in July, 1908, I resolved to come to New York to achieve immortality, and nearly did so during my first week here; but I got a job as a butler and resumed the habit of eating. My employer kept me as long as she could afford to. We next find our hero upon the hustings vociferously calling upon his fellow-citizens to vote for W. J. Bryan. The Afro-American audiences which, for the most part, our hero addressed, received him with tremendous enthusiasm, and with equal enthusiasm voted solidly for Taft on election day. Leaving the country to its fate, I again took up the pursuit of knowledge,—this time as a law clerk. In October, 1910, I passed the bar examinations, baffled all efforts of the character committee, and was admitted to practice. I soon found that I had captured only the first line of trenches. A few days ago, however, I captured the second when I was appointed by Judge Swann, the district attorney of New York County, as a member of his staff of assistants. Last fall I was elected leader of the colored democratic organization of New York. I hold no other office of honor or trust, having, thus far in my career, been chiefly concerned in seeking offices of pecuniary emolument.

I was only able to finish one year at Harvard, the year 1902-1903. The following school year was spent as the principal of the Bath Union School, at Bath, N. H., 1903-1904. I entered the University of Pennsylvania Medical School at the beginning of the school year, 1904-1905, and after studying there for four consecutive years, was graduated in June, 1908. That same month I took and passed the Pennsylvania State Board of Examinations for license to practise medicine. On June 30, 1908, was married to Miss Emily Evans, of Easton, Pa. On August 30, I left Easton, Pa., for Peking, China, where I taught in the Union Medical College of North China till January, 1912, at the same time serving at the Methodist Hospital, located at Peking, China. While in China, in 1911 and the early part of 1912, I helped to organize and went out with the first Red Cross Corps to go out in North China. I went to the "front" to help care for the wounded soldiers at the time of the revolution in China. For this service, the Chinese government has awarded me a medal and certificate, and given me honorary membership in the Chinese Red Cross Society. I returned to America in the early part of 1912. John Murdoch, Jr.

John Murdoch, Jr., eldest son of John Murdoch (Harvard, '73) and Abby Stuart Murdoch (Wisconsin, '76), was born on May 2, 1885, at Washington, D. C., where he lived until he was seven years old, when his parents removed to a farm in Middleboro, Mass., where the next four years of his life were spent. In 1896, the family established themselves in the Roxbury district of Boston, and this was his home during his school and college years. He received his early instruction from his mother, his first school being a private school in Roxbury, which he attended from November, 1896, till the following June, when he passed the examinations for entrance to advanced standing in the Roxbury Latin School. Entering the fifth class of this famous old school, he remained in the school until 1902, when he was graduated summa cum laude, and entered college with the class of 1906. On graduating from college, he spent one year in the Graduate School, and received the degree of A.M. in 1907. As a young boy he developed a great liking and aptitude for the study of botany, to which he remained faithful all his life, and this inclination, combined with his fondness for outdoor pursuits, led him to think of forestry as a profession, even before he entered college. His work in college was planned with this end in view, although he did not begin to specialize until late in his course. In the spring of 1907, he passed the civil service examination for Forest Assistant in the United States Forest Service, and received his appointment to the position on commencement day of the same year. Joining the service at once, he was sent first to the Sierra National Forest, in California, where the new assistants receive their preliminary training in the field; and in the autumn of the same year he was ordered to the Black Hills National Forest in South Dakota. Here he remained until the spring of 1911, when he was sent to represent the Forest Service at the experiment station maintained by the service in coöperation with the Weather Bureau, at Wagon Wheel Gap, Colorado. In the fall of 1911, he resigned from the government service, and, returning East, obtained employment under the State Forester of Massachusetts. His first work was as deputy fire warden in the Berkshire Hills, where he organized the system of lookout stations for protection against forest fires. During the rest of his service, which lasted until the time of his death, he was employed upon various problems, especially the investigation of the chestnut blight, upon which he published a report, the attempted suppression of the gypsy and brown-tail moths, and the improvement of farm woodlots in the neighborhood of Boston. He also made a forest survey and prepared a working plan for the forest treatment of the water-shed of the Middleboro ponds which furnished the water supply for the city of New Bedford. He was accidentally killed on January 29, 1915, by the overturning of a small building which he and his men were moving on an "improvement cutting" in Randolph, Mass. He was married at Chicago, on December 6, 1909, to Alice Lorriaux Abbott (Radcliffe, '09), and they had two children, Ruth Lorriaux, born December 2, 1911, and Mary, born December 31, 1914.

Since the publication of the last class report I have remained with the World Peace Foundation as international law adviser. Aside from office routine, I devote my time to the study of international affairs with a view to finding precedents capable of development in our work and to determine what attitude our organization should take. Besides I am greatly interested in extensive researches with the aim of showing how political science in its practical aspects has developed. I was made a director of World Peace on December 8, 1914. I have written: The Record of The Hague, Arbitration Engagements now Existing in Treaties, Treaty Provisions and National Constitutions, The Commission of Inquiry: The Wilson-Bryan Peace Plan,—its Origin and Development (published by World Peace Foundation), Non-Sovereign Representation in Public International Organs (Union des Associations Internationales), La Concentration des Organismes Internationaux Publics (Revue La Vie Internationale, Vol. III.), Representation in Public International Organs and The Origin of The Hague Arbitral Courts (American Journal of International Law, January and October, 1914).

For three years after graduation, as coach of the second team in football, I assisted in one successful and two unsuccessful attempts to vanquish Yale, while incidentally attending the Law School and practising law in the office of Hill, Barlow and Homans. In the summer and fall of 1909 it was my good fortune to serve as assistant to Arthur D. Hill, appointed to fill an unexpired term as district attorney of Suffolk County. After his term had expired, the position of assistant attorney in the Bureau of Justice, Philippine Islands, was offered to me and gratefully accepted. I left the United States in May, 1910, to fill this office and remained in the Philippines until August, 1913, having there been appointed successively assistant prosecuting attorney and city attorney of the city of Manila. Of many interesting and sometimes exciting experiences in the Orient probably the most important was getting married at Yokohama, Japan, in June, 1911. Three years of life in the tropics entitled me to a vacation, which I took just before the deluge following the change of administration in the islands. I resigned from the government service to enter the Boston office of Fish, Richardson, Herrick and Neave, where I have remained to date, varying the pleasures of life in Boston by occasional short business trips to New York and an extended trip again to the Philippines, but this time in a private capacity, from which I have just returned. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Union Boat Club, University Club, Manila, P. I.

Quitting college after receiving my degree, but before finishing the engineering course I had laid out, I began my first professional work under H. F. Tucker, '01, in Montreal. In January, 1907, a similar opening with a firm of Boston contractors brought me back to Massachusetts to make the structural designs of reinforced concrete buildings. Two and a half years were devoted to this work. In June, 1909, I was appointed assistant and later instructor in the engineering department at Harvard and for four years I taught mechanics and structural engineering. After my return from Montreal, I lived in Brookline, Mass., until my university appointment, when I built a house in Cambridge, my present home. In June, 1913, I left the university and went to work for the firm of Monks and Johnson, architects and engineers, in Boston, where I am still occupied directing and supervising the structural design of buildings of all types, mostly industrial and mercantile, and occasionally of other structures. Aside from profession and family my chief interests have been in the political and economic field. I have written: Shearing Strength of Construction Joints in Stems of Reinforced Concrete T-Beams, as Shown by Tests (Transactions American Society of Civil Engineers, Vol. LXXVII, in collaboration with Professor L. J. Johnson), Statical Limitations upon the Steel Requirement in Reinforced Concrete Flat Slab Floors (Transactions American Society of Civil Engineers, Vol. LXXVII). For three years after graduation I taught in a small preparatory school near Boston. Having determined to enter the ministry of the Episcopal Church, I spent the years 1909-1911 at the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn. I was ordained deacon in June, 1911, and at once entered upon the curacy of St. James' Church, New London. On my advancement to the priesthood in May, 1912, I became rector of Grace Church, Stafford Springs, Conn., which position I still hold, despite several calls to go elsewhere. I have taken a more or less prominent part in various civic improvements, and managements for community betterment, such as director of Young Men's Club, chairman, "Celebration Committee", member Stafford School Board, 1914-1916, and chairman, 1915-1916. I was also chiefly instrumental in the organization of the Stafford Choral Union in January, 1915. About two weeks after getting the A.B. degree in June, 1905, I left my home town to join, at Bismarck, N. Dak., George Wills, Herbert Spinden, and Dick Hellman, in excavating the old Mandan Indian mounds in that section. The funds for this expedition were furnished by the university, and I understand that the archaeological specimens (skeletons, pottery, arrow-heads and axe-heads, etc.), which we secured are now on exhibition in the anthropological department of the Agassiz Museum in Cambridge. I then went to Denver, and, while living in the mountains near there, received an offer to teach in the Trinidad, Col., High School. I accepted, and spent two very happy years teaching there. A better salary brought me to the Colorado Springs High School in September, 1907, where I taught in the English department until June, 1909, when I went into the newspaper business in the employ of the Colorado Springs Gazette. The two years and a half I spent in the newspaper game were rich in experience, in practically every line of newspaper work. But the terrific drain on a man's energy of a morning newspaper, caused me to re-enter the high school in the fall of 1911, where I taught until I was appointed principal, in 1915. The school has nearly 1100 students, a teaching force of 40, and a plant worth $300,000. Member: Colorado Springs Winter Night Club, Colorado Springs Golf Club, Rocky Mountain Harvard Club.

Returning to the United States in April, 1912, after six months loafing,—largely in Jamaica and Panama,—I took a job with Stone and Webster, on the Keokuk Dam. In July, 1912, I re-entered the service of the Wabash Railroad in the traffic department at St. Louis, Mo., and have been with that road continuously down to date. For the past three years my work has been almost entirely connected with the revision of the freight rate structure in "Central Freight Association Territory" and the resultant cases before the State Public Service Commissions and the Interstate Commerce Commission. I also acted as statistician for the Central Freight Association roads in the so-called Five Percent. Case, and am now under loan to the same lines to assist in working out some cost-accounting problems. Although my headquarters are at St. Louis, Mo., my work has taken me elsewhere to the extent of 75,000 miles in the past two years.

A month after graduation I took a position with the Review of Reviews Company, publishers of the American Monthly Review of Reviews. This position I had secured prior to leaving college by making the rounds of the magazine publishing houses. While with the Review of Reviews I gained considerable experience in the various phases of magazine publishing. I made the acquaintance shortly of

Mr. Cameron Mackenzie, son-in-law of Mr. S. S. McClure, and now a well-known author. He was at that time business manager of McClure's Magazine. Mr. Mackenzie offered me a position as circulation manager of McClure's in 1910, and I accepted it. Mr. Mackenzie and I, together with two other men,—one a Harvard graduate and one a Yale graduate,—determined to go into the publishing business for ourselves. In 1911 we succeeded in securing from Mr. S. S. McClure an option upon his majority stockholdings in McClure's Magazine. We at once formed a corporation (The McClure Publications, Incorporated), and late in the year 1911 this corporation purchased McClure's Magazine, and also the Ladies' World—a woman's magazine which had been prominent in the field for over twenty-five years. Shortly after the formation of our new company, I became treasurer of it, and we devoted ourselves to the publishing of these two magazines, together with a publishing connection, though not an ownership, of Harper's Weekly, edited by Norman Hapgood. specialties, remaining with them till May, 1910, when I went with the Canadian Real Estate Company, Ltd., of Toronto, Ont., and St. Paul, Minn., as secretary and treasurer, our business being the selling of Canadian farm lands in the prairie provinces. In February, 1913, I went to California to be married, and after a month's travel on the coast, I returned to St. Paul, in April, 1914, to engage in the land business for myself, or rather with three partners, the firm name being Fosbroke Land Company, Inc., of which I became treasurer. Since then, with the exception of a year at the University of California, I have been at the University of Michigan teaching and studying philosophy. Immediately after graduating I went abroad, where I spent the summer, returning in September, only to start out again a month later on a trip around the world, via San Francisco. On this trip I was accompanied by my brother Roy and Ferdy Thieriot, both of our class. We were gone about ten months. In the fall of 1907 I worked for a few months in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in St. Louis, returning to New York in the early part of 1908 to enter the real-estate business under the firm name of White and Pierce. I was married July 26, 1908, to Miss May Deering, of New York City, and we went to Europe on our "honeymoon", returning to New York in the fall. The summer of 1910 we again spent in Europe. In the spring of 1911, the firm of White and Pierce was dissolved, and I entered the stock and bond department of Ladenburg, Thalmann and Company, New York. In January of 1912 I was obliged to drop work and go to Southern California for my health, where I remained for six months. This illness was followed in 1913 by an attack of neuritis, which confined me to my bed for four months and necessitated my absence from work until the fall of 1914, when I once again went to St. Louis and entered the Pierce Oil Corporation. After a few months in St. Louis I returned to New York, where I make my home, and continued my work with the Pierce Oil Corporation in their New York office, where I now am located. Soon after leaving college I became "cub" reporter on the Springfield Republican. After two years,—having some doubts as to my literary ability, and being assured of a good night's sleep once in a while if I should change,—I entered the normal college man's occupation of selling securities. More or less success came to me and I am now in business for myself in "the Heart of the Commonwealth." Worcester is a good place to live in for many reasons,—one of them being a small but live Harvard Club, on the executive committee of which I had the honor to serve for a year. After leaving Cambridge and coming West on a "look-out tour" I settled in Tacoma, starting in the lumber and sawmill business, which finally led up to establishing with other associates a furniture factory. Unfortunately this was not a success as planned as we were not able to keep our new plant "above water" in 1907-1908. Since then I have married and am leading the simple life on my ranch at Glencove, —an occupation which is thoroughly enjoyable though not highly remunerative. The place is on the beautiful Puget Sound, fronting the water.

Education really began in earnest about the time of leaving the Law School. I can even yet remember the quest for my first position, having come to the conclusion that continued close proximity to the three B's (not pipes, but Boston Baked Beans) was essential to unsullied success and happiness. At the time of forming this conservative and hide-bound opinion, I had had a trip which included utilization of hospitality furnished by Bill Stickney in fair and distant Colorado, and another trip extending about the same distance in the other direction. Therefore, by choice, and not at all by reason of the fact that I, like a number of others, did not have the nerve to pull up stakes, I remained in the Hub, working, and in Cambridge, playing and sleeping. The latter included a little politics, in which I beat the prophet, who was never appreciated, etc., by encumbering a seat for two years, more successive than successful, in the common council. During my first two years of practice I made one of the older firms of the city what they are today, and incidentally got a taste of a salary, which, as some of us know, means money coming in regularly. Then I undertook the responsibility of working in search of more money free from the element of such distasteful regularity, and in both of these I think I succeeded. In December, 1915, I became resident manager of the Bristol County Office of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company of Boston, involving chiefly work under the Massachusetts Workmen's Compensation Act. I have translated four books of Caesar. After successfully supporting the unsuccessful Varsity crew in the race vs. Cambridge, England, I came to New York City and began to learn the banking business with Strong, Sturgis and Company, leaving them to go with Johnson, Wood and Rogers, a stock exchange house, Johnson being Harvard, '05. After two years with them I left the city for the National Commercial Bank, Albany, N. Y., to act as assistant to the president, Robert C. Pruyn, under his kind tutelage becoming the creator of a bond department of which I was manager. I came to New York again in February, 1914, to the position of manager of the bond department of Jackson and Curtis' New York office. Six of the members of the firm are Harvard graduates. I am now manager of the New York office, and have one Harvard graduate with me. I am not able to report any present activity in any organized work for the university. In Albany I was secretary and treasurer of the Harvard Association of Eastern New York, fathered and grandfathered by J. H. Perkins, '08, and Edward Bowditch, '69. I am looking for a job in this direction, and open to offers. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Racquet and Tennis Club of New York, Knickerbocker Club, of New York.

The principal event in my mind at present is my marriage,—an old story to class secretaries I suspect, but a novel one to me. My New England conscience is satisfied, but it does not necessarily follow that I am expecting to add to the number of future Harvard students. My wife is a graduate of this agricultural college where my work has kept me the last two years and she has a high opinion of the practical value of the training given here. The last two years, as I said, I have been practising architecture under the title of an agricultural engineer, and my client has been the state of Iowa, or rather any farmer in the state who by writing to me could get me to plan his barn, hog-house, chicken-coop, or even his house. This work for which I cannot claim the originality, or in fact claim to be more than one of several, is supposed to be experimental; so you may expect to hear of some bulletins which are now under way on the farmhouse and on arranging the farmstead from the building standpoint. So far, however, I have only written a few newspaper articles, being kept busy solving the various problems of farm-buildings which are turned over to me. The work is systematized so that most of the inquiries can be met by standardized drawing. This does not sound very hilarious after the glorious year and nine months I was travelling over in Europe on the courtesy of the university (the Julia Amory Appleton fellowship), or the year I had in New York after I got back. It is work that has a future, however. I have written an article on the Complete Farmhouse (published in the Country Gentleman), and articles on a Convenience Farm and the Iowa Farm House (published in the Iowa Agriculturalist of August and September, 1915).

After leaving college, I was associated for five years with the cotton goods brokerage business of my father in New York, under the style of C. M. Porter and Company. Since then I have been connected with the cotton goods department of William Iselin and Company as office manager and textile expert. Until my father's death about three years ago, I lived at his home at Emerson Hill, Stapleton, N. Y., and since then have had my own home in West New Brighton, my mother, brother and sister living with me. My business, confining me closely to New York City, as it does, has drawn my life into a rather local sphere, and outside of an occasional trip to Cambridge, and my short vacations in the country, I do no travelling. I have taken considerable interest in local affairs on Staten Island, where I live, having served for several years as secretary of the Curtis Club, an organization of men to further interest in good government and improved social conditions; director and at present vice-president of The Players, a local amateur dramatic organization; and clerk and chairman of the parish house committee of the Unitarian Church of New Brighton, both of which offices I now hold. During the past year, I have been serving as secretary of the Staten Island Academy Alumni Association and have been doing considerable publicity work in this connection. I then worked in the office of Redmond and Company, bankers, for two years and in the book publishing business for a year. I then went back to the law and received my degree at the New York Law School in 1911, having studied there one year and taken a special course in the summer school in addition. The next three years I worked in the law office of Carter, Ledyard and Milburn starting out for myself in May, 1914. In January, 1915, I joined the firm of Ehlermann, Hale and Wright. I resigned last October and am now practising by myself. In the summer of 1912 I made a trip to the Pacific Coast by way of the Canadian Rockies, going through the Yellowstone on my return. My only other extensive deviation from a line running north and south through Manhattan Island, was a trip to Switzerland the following summer. I have taken out life insurance in favor of the class, and I think every man should do this, so that the $100,000 burden shall not fall entirely on the survivors at the twenty-fifth anniversary. Having been engaged in newspaper work while in college, I naturally resumed this after leaving Harvard. I spent three years in reportorial work on the Pittsburgh Gazette Times and Philadelphia Press, much of the time doing special work, and eight years ago returned to my old home. With two associates The Sharon Herald Publishing Company was formed and we took over an old established weekly, a short time later launching a daily, which is now entering upon its eighth year. In March, 1913, our building and plant was entirely wiped out by a flood, but we managed to "come back" stronger than ever, and, as our business has prospered, we have managed to wipe out much of the debt incurred when the smash came. The game has been worth while as it never loses its interest or savor. Nothing doing in the matrimonial line, but as this is Leap Year there may be some home for a slightly bald, rather portly disciple of Horace Greeley who is reasonably happy and who is kept too busy trying to keep track of Wilson's notes to Germany to get into much mischief himself. Since graduation, my life has been comparatively uneventful. I was married in June, 1906, and chose education as my profession. I taught a year at Rumford Falls, Me., as principal of a grammar school. The next year I went to Marlboro, Mass, where I remained six months and then went to East Providence, R. I., as superintendent of schools. I served in this capacity for three years, meanwhile taking graduate work at Brown University. In 1911 I came to West Newton as supervising principal at an increase of salary, with the idea of getting more professional training at Harvard. By taking Saturday courses I received my A.M. last June in Education. I came to Amherst as superintendent last summer, to undertake the task of reorganizing the school system here as the opportunity to do constructive work in education appealed to me. This task, supplemented by well-meant but often futile efforts to discipline a future Harvard athlete, aged two and one-half years, takes all my time and energy. I have written: The Sentence, a language book for upper grades, Efficiency Card, for rating teachers, Survey of Fessenden School, East Providence School Reports, 1910, 1911, Amherst School Report, 1916. Member: National Education Association, I. O. O. F., Newton Lodge. Amherst Club, Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents.

WILLIAM GARDNER REED

Born	Roxbury, Mass., Sept. 5, 1884.
Parents	William Gardner Reed, Mary Louise Hagar.
School	Boston Latin School and Volkmann's School, Boston, Mass.
Years in College	1902-1903; 1906-1909.
Degrees	A.B., 1906 (1909); A.M., 1911.
Occupation	Climatologist.
Address	(legal) 9 Canyon Road, Berkeley, Cal. (business) Office of Farm Management, Washington, D. C.

I was graduated "as of" 1906 three years late owing to an excursion into the business world at the end of my freshman year. Since 1909 I have pursued various phases of geography, which pursuit still continues. After graduation I. remained in Cambridge for two years in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, broken in the spring and summer of 1910 by a hasty and singularly uneventful, but none the less interesting, trip around South America. In the summer of 1911 I migrated to the Far West to become instructor in climatology in the University of California. I remained there four years teaching climatology and physiography and investigating the climatology of California, besides discovering the essential similarity of American undergraduates of different colleges and becoming an enthusiastic Californian. In the summer of 1915, with only thirty-four years remaining in which to become eligible for a Carnegie pension, I came to Washington to take up work in agricultural geography, especially climatology, in the United States Department of Agriculture. I am now engaged in studies of the relation between climate and crops and agricultural practice in the office of Farm Management. Having held only places in universities or under the Civil Service Act, the question regarding "offices of honor or trust" (I may also and particularly include offices of profit), does not apply to me and I can, therefore, give no dates. I have written various articles on meteorology and climatology, principally in the Monthly Weather Review and the University of California publications. Member: American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Geographical Society, New York, N. Y., Association of American Geographers, California Academy of Science, San Francisco, Cal., Faculty Club of the University of California, Berkeley, Cal., Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of San Francisco, Royal Meteorological Society, London, England, Sierra Club, San Francisco, Cal., University Club, San Francisco, Cal., Seismological Society of America, Palo Alto, Cal.

Since leaving Harvard ten years ago, my life has been one full of pleasant surprises. First I went for a trip around the world, hesitating at such places as Vancouver, Honolulu, Fiji, Australia, India, Arabia, Egypt and Europe. The trip was stretched out over a period of six months and consumed most of $3,000. Since returning to Boston, my home city, I have ever since been engaged in the architectural and real-estate business. On the day of my sexennial I was married, and during the last four years my family has grown to the extent that it has doubled itself. My wife and I are the proud parents of a boy and a girl and we make our residence at Beverly Farms the "year-round". We are very well, thank you.

Also, after one season, the other gentleman contracted a severe cold in his pedal extremities, and I contracted a bunch of debts. I am still in the ring, however, and will give it another try when this spring arrives. One more thing I am forced to admit, which is that I am a parent of two of the greatest kids in the country, one three years old and the other nine months. After three years of teaching at Middlesex School, Concord, Mass., and six years in a brokerage house in Boston, I am now associated with the State Street Trust Company of this city, trying to add to the $22,000,000 deposits which they now have, and making everyone realize that there is only one safe place to keep their valuables, (!), and this, the safe deposit boxes of the company. Call up Remick, Main 7340, and let him fit you to a box or a set of signature cards. Last summer, as the representative of the State Street Trust Company, I attended the Plattsburg camp and for a month was a soldier. I actually had the honor of having my picture in one of the daily papers standing behind General Wood. You could recognize me by the broad smile on my face. Needing the signature of President Eliot, I returned to college in the fall of 1906, and in June, 1907, received an S.B. In order to look over the different countries across the pond, I spent the next four months travelling from Hamburg to Buda Pest, through Austria to the toe of Italy, into Switzerland, down the Rhine, with a fling at gay "Paree", and then through the British Isles. Now came my first job, and it is needless to say that the compensation received for my hard work did not pay for my lunches at Thompson's; but I managed to stay with the engineering department of the Boston Elevated until February, 1908, when I again went back to college, entering the mining school, and specializing in the metallurgy of iron and steel. That fall I went to work with the United States Army ordnance department, doing their steel work as metallographist at the Watertown Arsenal. It was here that I conceived the idea of becoming a soldier. Having obtained an appointment to take the examination for a commission, I went back to college in the fall of 1909 and entered the Graduate School of Applied Science, taking the regular course in electrical engineering. After the army examination in January, 1910, I was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps. In July I reported for duty at Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., leaving there soon afterwards to take the "incubate" course at Fort Monroe, Va., a course for all newly-appointed second lieutenants in the Coast Artillery Corps. From Fort Monroe, having enjoyed all the pleasures of Old Point for nearly a year, I was ordered to Fort Strong, Boston Harbor, and, in December, 1912, I was ordered to staff duty as artillery engineer, ordnance officer, and adjutant of the coast defences of New Bedford, Mass., where, at Fort Rodman, I keep open house. In March, 1915, I was ordered to Fort Monroe for promotion, and after three weeks of examinations, the board decided that I had qualified, and as a result, I am patiently waiting for Congress to place a bar on my shoulder. Member: Officers Club, Fort Monroe, Va., Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C., Masonic bodies of the York and Scottish rites of New Bedford, Fall River and Boston, Blue Lodge of Masons, Vineyard Haven, Mass.

Born — Delmar Township, Tioga County, Pa., Sept. 30, 1884.

Years in College	1902-1905.
Degrees	A.B., 1906; M.A. (Columbia University), 1911; B.D. (Union Theological Seminary), 1911.
Married	Mildred May Ament, Lincolnwood, Canandaigua Lake, N. Y., Aug. 9, 1911.
Children	Charles Ament, Aug. 9, 1914; Marion Jean, Dec. 18, 1915.
Occupation	Educator.
Address	Changli hsien, North China.

Before graduating in 1906, I was serving as assistant to Rev. Don S. Colt, D.D., pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church,, Rochester, N. Y. This position I held until the autumn of 1907, at which time I was planning to take a six months' trip to Europe and Palestine in the company of a friend. A call to teach Latin and Greek in Genesee Wesleyan Seminary at Lima, N. Y., caused me to give up the trip until one year later, when I went to Europe for six weeks instead of six months. For two years I dug among the dry bones of Caesar, Xenophon and Company, spending spare time training and managing athletic teams, occasionally preaching and courting. While at Genesee Wesleyan, I felt that I ought to offer myself as a candidate for the foreign field; but I was advised to complete my course in theology, which I had begun in 1905-1906; so in the fall of 1909 I entered Union Theological Seminary, from which I was graduated in 1911, at the same time receiving an M.A. from Columbia for two years' work on Chinese, with Hebrew for a minor, a fearful looking combination, but not so bad as it looks. To avoid T.B., and the reputation of a grind, I held down a place on the Columbia cross-country team of 1910 and the track team of 1911, and won a C on the latter. During all this time I had other irons in the fire, and on August 9, 1911, made the best if not the quickest move in my life; which, of course, was to get married. The next day my bride and I left for Changli, N. China, where we have lived happily ever since. After one year of wrestling with the language and the idiosyncrasies of China and the Chinese

(I'm still at it), I was appointed principal of the Changli intermediate boarding school. As fast as one can carry more he gets it out here; so the next year I had the conference secretaryship and the lower primary day schools of six counties loaded on me; and this year I have spread out my shoulders to pile on the superintendency of two more boarding schools and add on a high school course to the school here at Changli. I'm afraid I'm too busy to show up at the decennial, not to mention the price of a steamer ticket; but my heart is with you all. Member: Changli Branch of The International Reform Bureau.

During my senior year in college I completed the work for the degree of A.M., which I received in 1907. During the first year after college I was assistant minister of the Spring Street Presbyterian Church in New York City, where I had experience in social work and relief work. I then took a fifteen months' trip around the world, following not only the tourist route, but seldom travelled roads to the interior of China and other countries of Asia, in order to visit the mission stations. On my return to New York, I entered the Union Theological Seminary, where I took the full course of three years, graduating in 1911. I then became minister of Christ Presbyterian Church in New York City, where I am still working. My work is varied, because in addition to the church we have a large church house with a staff of expert workers, who maintain a large social and educational work for the tenement house population of the neighborhood. I am much interested also in civic and neighborhood improvement work. Member: Harvard Club of New York.

After eight rather quiet years of teaching English in Oberlin (Ohio) Academy, varied with the mildest kind of dissipation by some summer school work at Columbia, I am now in my second year at South High School in Youngstown, of recent strike fame. My spare moments from the routine of junior English classes are divided between leading the dramatic society to higher things and helping fan the flame that, some of us hope will develop into a real, live Harvard Club. With Watkins, another 1906 man, I have organized a branch of our class, but as we are the only two members, we have had no election of officers so far. Still we manage to have a celebration on a small scale when the Harvard Varsity gets into action, whether that happens to be in Princeton or New Haven. Otherwise all is peaceful. Member: Youngstown Harvard Club.

In the fall of 1906 I entered the Harvard Law School, which I left in June, 1907, spending the summer in New Hampshire. At the close of the season I went to New York City to enter the employ of The Celluloid Company. My connection with that company terminated in February, 1911, when I accepted a position with the Diamond Rubber Company and went to Akron, Ohio, where I spent several weeks, returning later to the New York office. I was called to Akron again in February, 1912, and definitely settled there. The change, at first, was hardly an agreeable one; but four years in that active rubber centre has convinced me that life in a city of one hundred thousand is more satisfactory than existence in New York. The consolidation of the Diamond and Goodrich Companies in the fall of 1912 brought many changes and I went with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, in the same city, where I am now located as secretary to H. S. Firestone, president of the company. My principal activities outside of business have been in connection with the University Club of Akron, of which I am treasurer and director. We are about to build a clubhouse costing $100,000, offering a fine home for the Harvard and other college men living in this city. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of Akron, Ohio, Akron Club of Akron, Ohio, University Club of Akron, Ohio.

Upon graduation, it was apparent that the General Electric Company was sorely in need of my services. Prompted by my considerate nature, I decided to help them, starting to work in the fall of 1906, at a most remarkable salary,—quite enough to live on by not eating at all. In 1908 I became associated with a New York concern importing heavy chemicals for the textile industry. My interest in textiles dated from this time. In 1911 I became a director and officer of the Lymansville Mills of Providence, and subsequently, of the Danielson Cotton Company, of Danielson, Conn., the Picardie Woven Fabrics Company, of New York, and the Pequot Shirt Company, of Westerly, R. The day after graduating from college in June, 1905, I sailed with my brother from Boston for Naples, and spent the summer travelling through Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, England and Scotland, having a delightful trip. Soon after my return to Boston I entered the employ of Blodget and Company, bond dealers, on October 1, 1905, where I have been ever since, recently having been given a share in the profits of the business. For the first few years my work was in the office, and I lived in Brookline, spending my vacations usually at York Harbor, Me. In April, 1908, I began travelling through New York State, Rhode Island and New Hampshire selling bonds. In the fall of 1910 I took a trip to California with the American Bankers Association, going by way of the Grand Canyon, visiting Southern California, San Francisco, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Vancouver, and returning home through the Canadian Rockies, via St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago to Boston,—fully as interesting a trip to my mind as my trip to Europe. In 1911 I moved into Boston, conveniently near the Harvard Club. When the clubhouse was built Phillips Ketchum and I raised a fund among some of the Boston men to furnish a room for the class of 1906, so that there might be some place where we could collect and keep any books or papers written by members of the class. I was married, on June 12, 1915, at Trinity Church, Boston, to Marjorie Alberta Rudolf, during which ceremony I was ably assisted by several of my classmates. Soon after the wedding, we started for the exposition at San Francisco, going by way of the Grand Canyon and the San Diego Exposition, and visiting my brother at Santa Barbara for two weeks. We covered practically the same trip that I had previously taken, with the addition of the Yosemite Valley and Niagara Falls. There is no need to add that this is the best trip I have ever taken. On our return we removed to 1070 Beacon Street, Brookline, Mass., where we are now living. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York, Oakley Country Club, Watertown, Mass.

As I finished my required number of courses at the end of my junior year, I was granted leave of absence for 1905-1906. Immediately after class day, 1905, my brother and I sailed for Europe on the Canopic, landing in Naples early in July. After travelling through the continent we sailed from Liverpool in September. Upon my return I entered the third year of the architectural course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as I had taken enough architecture at Harvard to allow this advanced standing. In June, 1906, I returned to Harvard to receive my degree with the class. Directly after this I entered the office of Cram, Goodhue and Ferguson, architects, where I worked until Technology opened in the fall. After graduating in 1907 from Technology, I again entered Mr. Cram's office, remaining until June, 1908. I then received an exceptionally fine offer from Bryn Mawr College, which was about to build a new gymnasium. As there was dissatisfaction with architects employed at the time, I was asked to make sketches, which were accepted. I at once left Mr. Cram and opened an office of my own, moving to Bryn Mawr in the fall to superintend the erection of the building. While there I also completed two houses for professors and a private cottage, besides starting sketches for the new infirmary, which is now being erected. I then returned to Boston, entering the employ of Allen and Collins, architects, where I remained until December, 1911. At this time, on account of my wife's health, I left for the Pacific coast, intending to spend three months in Santa Barbara, but upon arriving I was so charmed with the place and its business opportunities that I decided to open an office here and having taken my examination before the state board of architecture, was admitted to practice in this state, in January, 1912. In August, 1912, I formed a partnership with Russel Ray, '04, which was dissolved by mutual consent, December, 1914. Since locating here I have designed and erected Santa Barbara Young Men's Christian Association Building, Santa Barbara Bath House, for the Southern California Edison Company, many pieces of commercial work, among the most interesting being the entire layout for a village of three thousand inhabitants located in the centre of the Mojave Desert, also many pieces of residence work. I have become very much interested in civic and philanthropic work, being at the present time a director of the Cottage Hospital and Young Men's Christian Association and a vestryman of the church. Member: Santa Barbara Country Club, Santa Barbara Club, Santa Barbara Trap Shooting Club, Santa Barbara Gun Club.

In September, 1907, this department was transferred to New York and I went with it, joining, however, the traffic branch of the department. In November, 1909, I was transferred to the traffic department of the Michigan State Telephone Company, located in Detroit, Mich. There I filled several subordinate positions in the traffic department until April, 1913, when I was promoted to traffic superintendent, which position I now hold. This position is responsible for the switchboard and toll-line engineering, the service, the operating rules, the hiring and firing of the operators (of which there are about 4,000), the scheduling of the forces, the welfare work, etc., for the state of Michigan. After receiving my bachelor's degree I was Austin Teaching Fellow in anthropology for three years until I received my doctor's degree. In the summers of 1906 and 1907 I conducted ethnological work among the Nez Percé Indians of Idaho. In the summer of 1909 I taught in the Harvard Summer School and on September 1 of that year became attached to the scientific staff of the American Museum of Natural History, New York. My first field work was among the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico, extending at intervals from 1909 to 1914. In 1909 I visited the highlands of Central Mexico as well as Yucatan, to examine ancient ruins. In 1910 I returned to Mexico as a delegate from the museum to the congress of Americanists that met during the centennial celebration in Mexico City. After this meeting had closed, I spent three months in archaeological work in different parts of Mexico. In 1912, I made my first visit to Guatemala and Honduras, and in 1914 I spent six months in Central America, most of the time in company with Mr. S. G. Morley, '07, of the Carnegie Institution. We visited and studied monuments at the ancient Maya cities scattered in the jungle across the base of the Yucatan peninsula. A large part of 1915 was spent in installing the fine collection of Mr. Minor C. Keith, which included thousands of archaeological specimens from Costa Rica. At the end of this year I was delegate to the Pan American Scientific Congress, meeting in Washington. All told I have been busy at agreeable and varied work since leaving Harvard. I have written: The Mandans (with George F. Will). The Nez Percé, A Study of Maya Art. Notes on the Archaeology of Salvados. Member: Harvard Travellers Club, Boston, Harvard Club of New York, American Anthropological Society, Washington, American Ethnological Society, New York, American Folk Lore Society, Boston.

It's taken a sight of ruminating and straw-chewing to separate the wheat from the chaff of the last ten years and

I'll be hornswoggled if I'd have undertaken the job, only seeing the cause was so good. Here I am, down in the heart of Maine, gradually absorbing the vernacular of the bucolics and rusticating with a vengeance, an experience that serves as a period after the shiftings of a decade. Not that I've been a rolling stone, but rather have pursued a circumlocutive and likewise an accumulative existence. My first offence was to teach the young idea how to shoot. The ammunition I used was French and German, with a bit of Spanish mixed in to make the charges particularly deadly. Well, things went off with a bang and I scored a few bull's-eyes in the work until I was seized with an insatiable longing to shift my view-point and, instead of paternally looking down all the tine in the role of a teacher, to sight bigger things. Before I did that, I went to France to air my French. When I started to talk with the natives at Cherbourg, I at once decided that my French needed especially good airing. However, by inveigling in conversation all those who could reasonably or unreasonably expect a tip from me, I managed to acquire a degree of fluency and succeeded in escaping the charge of assassinating the mother tongue. When I returned, I became editor of The Boston Literary Bulletin and rubbed elbows with the various positions of author, critic, printer, proof-reader, advertising manager, circulation manager, publicity expert, and so forth, ad infinitum. I had a number of well-known men on my staff, among whom was Charles Felton Pidgin, author of Quincy Adams Sawyer. But, after three or four years of routine work, my nose began to get sore from being kept at the grindstone so long; therefore, I ambled forth into other fields. I was seized with the craze for doing free-lance work and determined to take the nub of my variegated past, add the concoctions of an active imagination, and, after mixing and baking well, sell the goods in the market-place. Some of my friends, whom I have honored by reading my effusions to them, intimated that I was trying to get money under false pretences. Others appeared decidedly anxious about my mental condition. Inasmuch as I have, in the past five years, sold thousands of those effusions, I have come to the conclusion that the manuscripts must contain some merit or the editors must be either blind or batty. What do I write? Bless your heart, anything that comes along. If a household magazine wants to know the best way to fry apple fritters, by cricky, I'd see that they got it. Poems, short stories, articles of every kind, all are "meaty" subjects. I am married and have resigned my position as boss of the house to a bouncing three-year-old boy,who knows how to get around his dad. However, I hope to recover in time some remnants of my former authority. A suggestion by the way: Those members of the class who are not yet married ought to pay a special tax for their oversight and be forced to make a resolution to repair their defection before the next meeting. Just now, it is my purpose to create an avocation. As soon as the snows melt, I shall corral a flock of Rhode Island reds and go on a still hunt after the elusive egg.

After spending August and September, 1906, in the foundry of the Griffin Wheel Company, of Chicago, learning how to manufacture railroad and street-car wheels, I took up the selling end of the business, representing the firm in Eastern Canada, the New England states, and New York City, until February, 1912. After five months as Boston sales manager of the United States Printograph Company, of La Crosse, Wis., I entered the investment banking business in July, 1912. In the following January, I removed to Chicago, to open an office and become Chicago manager for the same firm, with jurisdiction west and south of Cleveland, Ohio. In October, 1913, I returned to Boston to go with Merrill, Oldham and Company, investment bankers, where I remained until October, 1914. Since that time, I have been with the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Boston. I have kept up my athletics with bowling, baseball, tennis and golf. Two years ago baseball became too strenuous for an old man, and I took up golf. In this sport I have managed to reduce my state handicap from 18 to 11, and like all golfers, I live for the future. Since our sexennial report, my work has been almost wholly in the Harvard Library, where I went in August, 1912, after two months of service in the Cleveland Public Library. The past four years have been particularly interesting as being a period of transition at Harvard, since they comprised the last months of existence of the old Gore Hall, nearly three years of work in temporary quarters in Randall Hall, and finally a year in the new Widener building. Preparations for permanent settlement in our final quarters included drastic reorganization of the library's working machinery, in particular completion of the only partially finished arrangement of books according to subjects. Of this part of the work I had charge; so I have the satisfaction of having done (whether well or ill) work that will leave a definite impress on the library for some time to come. I started as assistant in the shelf department, which was later merged with the catalogue department, in which I was made a supervisor in September, 1915. Since September, 1914, I have held an appointment from the corporation giving me rank with permanent officers of the university. In August I leave here to return to the Cleveland Public Library, as curator of the special collection of books on folklore, archaeology and Oriental literature, presented and constantly increased by Mr. John G. White. One drawback about this change will be that in 1916, as in 1912, when I removed from Cleveland to Harvard, I shall be unable to cast a vote in the presidential election. After leaving college in 1906, I spent the next six months in the West and Alaska, but came home to go into the New York office of Lounsbery and Company, stock brokers. I remained with them until the summer and in the fall entered the New York Law School where I stayed two years until I received a degree and passed the New York bar examinations. After deciding that law was not my vocation in life and that examinations had very little charm for me, I applied for a position in the bond department of Lee, Higginson and Company, in New York, where I remained for over four years. On November 1, 1913, with three friends of mine, I started a New York office for the firm of Hambleton and Company, of Baltimore, and have been a partner in this firm ever since. I am not married or engaged, and have no prospects of being either; so you see my story is rather uninteresting. I lived in the open for nearly three years. I then went to California, where I got interested in raising livestock. In 1911, I came back to Cobourg, bought a farm, and have been raising pure-bred Holstein Friesian cattle ever since.

On consulting the second report, of June, 1912, I find that I was getting-rich-quick in Prince Rupert, having forsaken provincial Boston and the effete East for the more promising (mostly promising) Canadian Northwest, which was just about entering the slump which land speculation had created and which the great war has made considerably worse. During my nine months' sojourn in that forlorn part of the map wanderlust worked itself completely out of my system and any incipient idea of expatriation based on a broad concept of internationalism was rapidly dissipated by trying to learn to live in Canada. Eastern United States I concluded was good enough for anybody capable of making a real living anywhere. During 1913 I was connected with the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, having charge of their Fall River office for a part of that time. The year 1914 I spent as financial secretary of the Philadelphia Society for Organizing Charity and since that time I have been secretary of the Bureau of Municipal Research in the same city, meantime becoming a member of the Philadelphia bar. Municipal research is very fascinating work, especially for one with a social and legal training. There is plenty of room in any city for the intensive study looking towards improvement in the technique of municipal management. I have written: The Promise of the Ashtabula Plan (in Town Development, April, 1916), numerous contributions to Citizens' Business (published weekly by the Philadelphia Bureau of Municipal Research). Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of Philadelphia, City Club of Philadelphia, Belfield Country Club, Philadelphia, Social Workers Club of Philadelphia, Monday Evening Club, Boston.

The summer after I was graduated I spent in Europe with my family, chiefly in Switzerland, returning to Cambridge in the autumn. That winter Austin Gill, John Montgomery and I roomed in Grays 28. I received an S.B. degree in civil engineering in June, 1907. Immediately afterwards I went to New York with the Turner Construction Company, builders of reinforced concrete, partly on construction work and partly in the office. In the spring of 1909, they had the contract for the top of the Stadium and I came back to Cambridge for a few months during the construction. In January, 1910, I left the Turner Construction Company and came to Easthampton, Mass., to take charge of the construction of a steam plant and transmission line for the Easthampton Gas Company. After a year there, I came up to Turners Falls as engineer in charge of construction of the hydro-electric plant of the Turners Falls Power and Electric Company on the Connecticut River, which is now nearing completion. In connection with this work I went out to the Pacific coast in the autumn of 1912, to look up some of the water powers in the West. I have written: Hydraulic Redevelopment at Turners Falls (Engineering News, July 29, 1915). Associate Member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Country Club of Greenfield, Mass.

Completing the college course in three years, in the fall of 1905 I entered the Harvard Law School, and upon admission to the Masachusetts bar, became associated with Harold F. Hathaway, of Taunton, in the general practice of law, at 7 Rand Building, in Taunton, where I have been engaged to the present time. In 1904 I went abroad; in 1905 visited the Pacific Coast; in 1908 went to Europe again, and since then have made trips to Canada and the South. In business, I am president of the White Warner Company, manufacturers of the "Household" and "Quaker" ranges; and am also president of the S. and M. Company, conducting an extensive automobile business in Taunton and surrounding territory. While attending law school, I became interested in local politics, and in 1907 was elected from my ward to the city council, to which I was subsequently elected in 1908 and 1909. In 1910, Taunton adopted a new charter, doing away with the so-called "ward representation" form of city government, and, abolishing the bi-cameral system of council and board of aldermen, accepted the new form of "election at large" with a single administrative body termed the "Municipal Council". To this I was elected with a term of two years. In 1912 I was elected to the Massachusetts legislature as the representative for the fourth Bristol district. The Hon. Grafton D. Cushing, then speaker, appointed me to the committee on ways and means, composed of eleven members, assigning me eighth place. Since that time, I have been returned by the district each year successively. This year, 1916, I had the honor of being appointed by the Hon. Channing H. Cox, speaker, as chairman of the committee on ways and means for the house. I am a Republican, have belonged to the Republican city committee for several years, and have taken an active part, both on the stump and otherwise, during recent years in the gubernatorial campaigns, more especially the last, which resulted in the election of the Hon. Samuel W. McCall, the present Governor of Massachusetts. Member: Masonic: King David Lodge, Taunton, St. Mark's Royal Arch Chapter, Taunton; Knights of Pythias: Orient Lodge, No. 107, Taunton; Odd Fellows: Sabbatia Lodge, No. 225.

In college I chose as many courses in English as I could without neglecting history, government, economics and modern languages. Mainly interested in the humanities, I decided to take full advantage of the elective system by following my personal ideas concerning the foundation of a liberal education for any life work given me by opportunity. In March of my senior year Professor Copeland asked me if I desired to be an instructor in English at the United States Naval Academy; I decided, having his recommendation, to apply for permission to take a competitive examination at Annapolis, which led to my appointment by the Secretary of the Navy, to take effect July 1, 1906. Since, in choosing to go to Harvard, my selection of an alma mater lay between Harvard and West Point, I had found a happy combination of two aims, educational and military, which seemed previously to be widely divergent. Experience at the Naval Academy has never led me to regret my decision in 1906, though it has given me the realization of how much more I could have accomplished at Harvard had I used my time more efficiently, both for study and athletics, as time is perforce used at the Naval Academy, under military discipline. In 1909 I was offered an opportunity to enter the diplomatic service; but for lack of independent means I was forced to decline. It is unusual to have the opportunity to straighten out a tangle of identity in the trophy flags of the Navy, and to be given the two years' task of cataloguing this greatest collection of naval trophies in the world. The only book I have published is the official catalogue of these flags, illustrated. It is not usual to be ordered to revise the whole course of instruction in English and history at a national school, or to feel that one has had under his instruction all the commissioned officers of the Navy (save those who have risen from the ranks), who are thirty-two years old and under. I have prepared: Official Catalogue of the Trophy Flags of the United States Navy (published by the United States Naval Institute, 1913). I have written: The Battle of Lake Champlain (United States Naval Institute, 1914), The British Royal Standard (United States Naval Institute, 1913), A Mexican Vivandiere (Life, October, 1915). Member: Harvard Club of Maryland, Baltimore, Naval Academy Officers' Mess, Annapolis, American Legion, American Security League, United States Naval Institute, Annapolis.

Having completed the courses necessary to receive my degree, I entered, in October, 1905, the employ of the City Trust Company of Boston, where I soon had an opportunity to become largely instrumental in establishing in New England a more or less universal custom of having municipal bonds and notes issued under the supervision of the Trust Company. I continued in this work, in September, 1908, becoming assistant secretary of the City Trust Company, until and after its consolidation with the Old Colony Trust Company in February, 1909. My department did also a small bond and note business in municipals and eventually developed into a general bond department, of which I became manager. In the meantime I became a director of a paper and pulp company and succeeded in a reorganization of its finances and business at some profit to myself as well as to the banks interested. As a result, my endeavors have been largely in that line while continuing vice-president of the Old Colony Trust Company, to which position I was elected in January, 1913. In this capacity I have covered quite a wide field of industrial activity and a considerable part of the country. I am at present interested as a director or executor or both, aside from banking as it is done at the Old Colony Trust Company, in the manufacture of paper, pulp, pig iron, cotton gins, cottonseed oil machinery, chemicals, and in pulp wood operations and coal mining. In connection with these I have become very much interested in scientific management so-called, which I commend to your attention if you are a manufacturer. I have been privileged also to do some work in our church, in the vestry of which I am now serving my second term. To sum up, I have been extremely fortunate and I often feel that I have more happiness in my family and the enjoyment of my business than I am entitled to. In 1909, I was elected secretary of the Cigar Manufacturing Company; and in 1912, I was elected vice-president of the same company. In 1912, I was appointed by Mayor Gaynor on the commission to draft a new moving-picture law for New York City. I drew what is known as the "Folks ordinance", which was passed by the board of aldermen and has served as a model for moving-picture laws in many cities of the country. It first permitted moving-picture houses of 600 seats. In 1913, I resigned from the cigar company, and was appointed by the governor to the New York State Industrial Board, charged with all factory legislation in the state. In 1914, after one and a half years of service, I resigned and went to Turkey, to assist Ambassador Morgenthau. I took

John Briggs West, Jr.

John Briggs West, Jr., was born at St. Paul, Minn., September 13, 1882. His parents were John Briggs West and Lillian Bronson. He prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N. H., and Brown and Nichols School, Cambridge, Mass. He was in college four years, and was graduated with the degree of S.B. in 1906. After graduating, he entered the employ of a law-book publishing house in St. Paul, and soon became its secretary. Of a highly sensitive nature with a delicate sense of right and honor, the strain of a long fight against a "reorganization committee" for the rights of stockholders, which the committee was prone to disregard, broke his health completely. Several trips to various parts of the country failed to bring back his strength and he died in St. Paul on August 31, 1912.

I do not intend to commit any indiscretion. Anything worth telling I should not tell; and anything less would be below my dignity. Everything I have printed is in the Harvard Library. The new Westenholzian style of literature, the prose romance, is a kind of fairy-tale, and sort of poor imitation of Rilke and Dante. The most prominent specimen of this art nouveau is the Friedensromanze, written in New York, in June, 1915. The romance is written in German.

After graduating from Harvard, I began teaching Latin and Greek at Mohegan Lake School, Mohegan Lake, N. Y., where I continued for five years. During that time I had experience in various lines of school activity, branching out into other subjects and interests than the classics. For the first time I became actively interested in sports, and made myself familiar with the various games concerning which I had been ignorant. Leaving Mohegan in 1911, I spent two years teaching at the Rutgers Preparatory School, New Brunswick, N. J., gaining further valuable experience in school work, and adding to the list of subjects which I knew thoroughly. As a result of this rather expensive and practical training in the work of preparatory schools, I was chosen by Mr. C. C. Gaines, who was then assuming charge of Riverview Academy in Poughkeepsie. For two years, I was practically resident principal under him, having immediate charge of all the school activities, except the financial part of the business. Upon the relinquishing of the control of the school by Mr. Gaines, the men who became the owners of the school saw fit to entrust its active management to me, assisted by Mr. G. Garfield Sawyer, Amherst, '11. I consider this a tribute to the effort I had made for the two years previous to organize the academy as a high-class preparatory school, and to gain the confidence of the students and patrons. This year has been a very pleasant one, with plenty of hard work and not without its reward in seeing the school grow in prestige and good reputation. The proposition I am at present working on is to build up, on a very old, but somewhat crumbled foundation, a solid financial basis for the school, hoping eventually to get it endowed. Whether this aim will ever be justified by success is for time to decide; while the effort is before me I am bending every energy to it. Such work as I have been engaged in has rendered it practically impossible for me to indulge in the normal social life which I should like, and has made marriage out of the question. Member: University Club, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

I think there happened to be a class report a few years ago and if anyone is really interested in more than the past four years of my life he can refer to that. Perhaps the most extraordinary thing that has happened to me since the last report was published was the accumulation of enough wealth to pay my bills and take a ten weeks' trip to Paris and Italy two years ago. I have a lot of nice new bills now, but brighter business times make me feel hopeful. Landscape Architecture (the Quarterly Magazine of which I was one of the founders) continues to occupy a small part of my time, and is neither an expense nor a source of profit. Landscape architecture (my profession) takes most of the rest of my time. January 1, 1916, I became a partner of Charles Downing Lay, '02, with whom I have been for five and a half years. The firm name is Lay and Wheelwright. Once a year I have to help stir up Kelley to call a meeting of the 1906 dinner committee of New York, which results in an annual dinner to which all 1906 men are urged to come, whether they get a bid or not. Remember that next year and every succeeding year, for the more we have, the merrier. Member: Harvard Club of New York, American Society of Landscape Architects.

Since my autobiographical efforts of 1912 there is not much to add. I have become more firmly established in Seattle, where we now divide our time between the city proper and a camp on the north end of Bainbridge Island, about fifteen miles by boat up Puget Sound from the city. I am the proud father of a second son. A little travel each year and a trip about every two years to the Atlantic coast are the only other items of particular interest. The mortgage business which I established, with Ralph H. Bollard, '05, in the fall of 1910, has thrived and grown apace. The pleasure of living in Seattle has increased year by year. LAWRENCE WARBURTON WHITE

Parents	Franklin Davis White, Mary King Vezin.
School	Milton Academy, Milton, Mass.
Years in College	1902-1905.
Degrees	A.B., 1906 (1905).
Occupation	Banker and Broker.
Address	(home) 167 School St., Milton, Mass.
	(business) Care of Spencer Trask and Company, 50 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

After taking my degree in June, 1905, I entered the employ of the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, where I stayed for about six months. I left in January, 1906, to go to work for Lee, Higginson and Company, where I remained until July, 1912. In the employ of this firm I had a varied experience in several departments of the office, and was able to learn, in an excellent training school, the fundamentals of the bond business. The last three years I was with this firm I spent as assistant manager of the syndicate department, which, without doubt, is the most responsible and interesting position relating to the inside work of the office. In July, 1912, I left to go with the firm of Learoyd, Foster and Company, 30 State Street, Boston (Foster being Hatherly Foster, Jr., '07). Here I devoted my entire time to selling bonds and bringing in business,—this being the first experience I had so far had in soliciting business. I remained here, finding the work and associations most congenial, until August, 1915, when I was offered a position by Percival Gilbert, '08, (then Boston manager, and just now made a member of the firm) of Spencer Trask and Company. I accepted this offer and am working as city salesman, and feel lucky to be associated with so fine a firm, and to have such an opportunity to build up a business. This firm does a very large bond business with branch offices in several cities. Outside of business, which has kept me pretty well tied down most of the time, I have spent my spare time in my home town, doing no travelling or moving about, except for a vacation trip to Europe in August, 1910. My hobbies are tennis, swimming and automobiling. It is my ambition to have a little farm some day, and a place where I can tinker on an automobile, for I am devoted to outdoor life, and to the mechanical part of automobiling. To members of the class who may be contemplating the purchase of automobiles I wish emphatically to state that I doubt if they can get more lasting pleasure and benefit out of any other investment. I have had, as can be observed, a very uneventful career so far, and now that I am about 31 I feel that my habits are firmly fixed for life. Nevertheless, as I look back ten years, I feel that I have had a good time, and am looking forward to years more of the same. In May, 1912, I joined Troop B, 1st Squadron Cavalry, M. V. M., and served till November, 1914, when I was obliged to resign on account of poor eyesight. Recently I have taken up boy scout work and am an assistant scout master of one of the troops in my home town. Member: Milton Club, Milton, Mass.

This writing of a life history seems to be as painful a proceeding as writing a theme for English A on the steps of "Sever" five minutes before it was due in the box at Room 21. Not being married, I find that the life of a bachelor after ten years out can be recorded by ditto marks. To ditto the history already reported, it seems that the statements appearing in the second report of the class in June, 1912, are still substantially correct, being as follows: "After my junior year I left college, taking my degree in 1906. I have been with Stone and Webster for six and a half years. The winter of 1907-1908 was spent in Chicago as a salesman of the green-goods in the territory west of the Mississippi River. The spring of 1908, however, brought me back to Boston, still on the financial end of the business. During the winter of 1910 and until July of that year I managed the New York office, then Boston again became the attraction. I have visited no foreign countries." "Bean Town", in the employ of Stone and Webster, continues to be the magnetic pole and, except for a few slips here and there at varying radii and distances from this centre, it still seems my lot to continue a "bean eater". Outside of business, some experience has been gathered in the field of politics and in soldiering. As a chairman of the Warrant Committee in 1915 and as chairman of the Water Commissioners in 1916 in the town of Milton, and as a private at Plattsburg, it has been found that there is as much fun in thinking you are running the affairs of a town, or learning to be as tough as a "regular", as it was in thinking that you had smeared an exam., even if the final mark did not come up to your expectation. Member: University Club of Chicago, Harvard Club of New York, Underwriters' Club of New York, Exchange Club of Boston, Tennis and Racquet Club of Boston, Harvard Club of Boston, Milton Club of Milton.

I returned to my home at Bismarck a few months after finishing college and went to work with my father in the seed and nursery business in which I have since become a partner. Our state has more than doubled in population since my return and our business has kept pace with this increased demand so that we now have the largest business of the kind in the state. Our nursery of about fifty acres gives me plenty of outdoor work during the larger part of the year, which is a very pleasant alternation with the office work. As a hobby I have kept up interest in anthropology and ethnology, and try to spend at least a few days of every year among the Indians of our state, gathering material for study. I have camped in the Rockies, the Cascades, and the Olympics of the coast range, as well as in various parts of North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana for vacation trips, sometimes with my wife and sometimes with men friends. I have been an active member of our State Historical Society, working with the curator on several occasions in gathering material. Of the Bismarck Commercial Club, our local body for promoting all civic enterprises, I have twice been a director, being elected for the second time last month. I have done considerable work during the past three years in corn investigating and breeding with special reference to the northern native corns of the Indians. In this work I have been associated with Mr. M. L. Wilson, of the Montana Agricultural College. I have written four papers on various archaeological subjects in the American Anthropologist; two papers on cowboy songs and two on Indian subjects in the Journal of American Folk Lore; a paper on the early history of the Cheyenne Indians in the Proceedings of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association; a paper on Mandan Indian corn for a Montana Experiment Station Bulletin now on the press. Member: Bismarck Commercial Club, Bismarck Country Club, North Dakota State Historical Society, American Folk-Lore Society, American Anthropological Association, Mississippi Valley Historical Association, American Agronomic Society.

My work has been a continuation of that described in the triennial report; my position, assistant curator of the department of Egyptian art in the Metropolitan Museum of New York, with A. M. Lythgoe, class of 1892. In the winter of 1909-1910 I was in charge of the Museum's excavations in Khargeh Oasis in the Egyptian Desert, and in the four following seasons at Thebes. Each summer I returned home, with trips on the side in Europe, a visit in 1912 to Cyprus, and a protracted stay on the Dalmatian coast the same summer. That fall I married Helen Chandler, daughter of Professor Francis Ward Chandler, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. At the outbreak of the war we were in Maine for the summer. Conditions made it advisable to stop my field work for the time being and to take up work in the museum on which I had been engaged ever since. Rather than cast an irresistible temptation in the way of any submarine captain we intend to keep our two babies here until the war is over. I have written short reports on excavations (Metropolitan Museum Bulletin), The Tomb of Senebtisi (in collaboration), The Theban Necropolis in the Middle Kingdom (American Journal of Semitic Languages). Member: Turf Club, Cairo, Egypt, Royal Societies Club, London, Rockaway Hunting Club, Cedarhurst, L. I., Harvard Club of New York.

Since the last class report was issued, I have gone through one of the most refined forms of torture known to the academic world, from which I emerged with the third degree. The next winter I spent in England as Roger fellow of Harvard University, collecting more material for my magnum opus, which I am now getting ready for publication. In September, 1914, I penetrated terra (to me) incognita, to accept a position on the faculty of Indiana University, where I am located as a member of the English department. I sailed February 12, 1916, for London, thence to go to Belgium, having received six months' leave of absence from the University of Indiana. I expect to return in the fall. Parents	Charles Francis Withington, Georgiana Bowen.
School	Roxbury Latin School, Roxbury, Mass.
Degrees	A.B., 1906; S.B., 1907.
Married	Dorothea Barrows, Hartford, Conn., Dec. 22, 1914.
Occupation	Electrical Engineer.
Address	(home) 86 Linden St., New Haven, Conn. (business) General Office Building, New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, New Haven, Conn.

The summer after graduation, I spent in the works of the Sturtevant Blower Company, at Readville, pursuing useful experience of various kinds, and the following winter in Cambridge absorbing mechanical engineering knowledge at the Scientific School. The next summer I travelled in England, France, Switzerland and Italy; and the succeeding winter I spent again in Cambridge, as Latin teaching fellow in mechanical engineering, assisting Professor Hollis and Professor Marks in fourth year courses. I also did some research work in the laboratory, and took some courses in electrical engineering, though I was not registered for any degree. After leaving Cambridge in 1908, I spent about eighteen interesting and profitable months in the Walworth Manufacturing Company works at South Boston, in very miscellaneous research work and experiments connected with the various kinds of manufacturing done there. In January, 1910, I became connected with the electrification of the much despised New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, first on the preliminary location survey on the Harlem River Branch, and the Stamford-New Haven section, and later on the design and construction of the line equipment of the New York, Westchester and Boston Railway, the Harlem River Branch, and Stamford-New Haven. I am now engaged in miscellaneous construction in connection with the electrified division between New Haven and New York. On December 22, 1914, I was married to Dorothea Barrows. We are living in New Haven, where there is a strong feeling in favor of Yale; but which is otherwise a pleasant place. We should be very glad to see any member of 1906 who may be in town for football games or for any other reason. I have written: Experiments on Flat Cast Iron Plates (Harvard Engineering Journal, 1907 and 1908), Notes on Gateway Construction of New York, Westchester and Boston Railway (pamphlet, published by Franklin Institute of Philadelphia). Member: Harvard Club of New York, Graduates Club, New Haven, American Society of Mechanical Engineers (New York).

The first year after leaving college I went to work for the General Electric Company at their Schenectady office. I left the company because I had "too much pull," having been introduced to the president by one of the directors of the company, and this made it very difficult to learn the business from the bottom up, as things were made too easy for me. After I had been with them a little less than two years I went with Messrs. Bonbright and Company, bankers and brokers, as a runner at $5.00 per week. I picked out this house as I did not know any one in the firm or office, personally. At the end of eighteen months I was assistant cashier at $3,000 per year, and six months later I went into business for myself with one of the partners of that firm. At present I am a member of the New York Stock Exchange. I married Sally Dunton Dixon, November 7, 1907.

'Tis easily told: no spectacular career so far. The medical school and the surgical interneship at the Massachusetts General Hospital accounted for the time until January, 1911, and the time was most certainly filled. Since that time, I have been practising surgery in Boston, at times feeling that it was all I had ever dreamed of, at times wishing there was some way of making a better living; but always busy and never regretting that I was a "doc". For four years I was medical mentor to the crew at Harvard and very thoroughly enjoyed the contact with that bunch of men and that phase of work. For the last four years, I have been on the staff at the Massachusetts General Hospital and also on the staff at the Faulkner Hospital. Two years ago, a future candidate for the crew appeared at the house and has grown rapidly huskier ever since his appearance. In the fall of 1906 I accepted the flattering offer of twelve dollars per week made by the Badger Brass Manufacturing Company, and was assigned to a soldering iron in their New York factory in "Hell's Kitchen". From my first occupation I was soon transferred—I have often suspected on account of a waste of solder—to first one and then another department, until I became factory superintendent. This title, although of absolutely no importance, evidently deceived the B. F. Goodrich Company, of Akron, Ohio, into making me an offer, and in April, 1908, I went to Akron as manager of the golf ball and motor cycle departments. In October, 1909, through a succession of fortunate accidents, I came to the B. F. Goodrich Company. For reasons carefully kept from me, and known only to the company, I am still manager. During the last six years I have lived through an attack of pneumonia, an engagement, a marriage, and the arrival of two sons. I travelled in Europe during the summer and returned to the University in the fall as a candidate for Ph.D., and was appointed Austin teaching fellow in chemistry. I received my doctor's degree in June, 1909. Shortly after I was appointed instructor in chemistry in Columbia University, a position which I held till the spring of 1912, when I resigned to accept the directorship of the Bureau of Industrial Chemistry in Montevideo, Uruguay. I held this position for one year, being compelled to resign owing to ill health. In the fall of 1913 I came back to Columbia University as an assistant professor in chemistry. LAUREN CARROLL

Born	New York, N. Y., July 16, 1886.
Parents	Howard Carroll, Caroline Starin.
School	Cutler School, New York, N. Y.
Years in College	1902-1906.
Degrees	A.B., 1906; A.M., 1907; LL.B., 1909.
Occupation	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 4 East 64th St., New York, N. Y.
	(business) 2 Wall St., New York, N. Y.

Immediately after Commencement in 1906 I went to Europe, and, after spending the summer in southern England, the chateau country of France and the Austrian Tyrol, I returned to enter the Harvard Law School in October. In 1907 I received the degree of A.M. in political science for work done during our senior year. In the summer of 1907 I travelled extensively through Canada and in the United States. In 1907-1908 and in 1908-1909 I was assistant to Professor Ripley in Economics 9a. During the summer of 1908 I visited Montenegro, Bosnia, Herzegovinia, Italy and Central Europe. In March, 1909, I was admitted to the New York bar and received the Harvard LL.B. degree in the following June. The summer of 1909 I spent in Venice and along the Dalmatian coast. Since September, 1909, I have been engaged with the firm of Gould and Wilkie in the general practice of law in New York City. I became a partner in that firm July 1, 1913. During the past seven years I have taken an active part in our local New York politics and have served my Republican district organization as election district captain, as vice-president, and in many other capacities. Things have so shaped themselves that I could do so without interrupting the practice of law. After a short trip to Europe in the summer of 1913, I returned to help manage my district campaign in the city election which resulted in the election of Mitchell for mayor and George McAneny as president of the board of Aldermen. We elected Ralph Folks (Harvard 1900) as alderman in our district, but before January 1st he was appointed to an important administrative position in the city government and at the first meeting of the Board of Aldermen in January, 1914, I was elected by the board to fill the vacancy for the full term of two years. At that time the board was controlled by an unusual nucleus of intelligent, hardworking, business men and lawyers, so that a considerable amount of constructive legislation was accomplished, including the adoption of a new building code, which had long been a stumbling block and the complete codification of the city ordinances. I was fortunate in serving both upon the building code and codification committees, as well as upon the general laws committee and the education committee. Last fall (1915) I was renominated by the Republican organization and endorsed by the Independence League and the Progressives. In spite of a general Democratic victory throughout the city, I was re-elected in my district by a vote of 3,927 to 3,108 for a term ending in December, 1917. In conclusion, I must mention the memorable voyage of the Finland in August, 1915, when I was the only representative of "1906" among more than one hundred Harvard men who sailed from New York to the San Francisco meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs. Member: University Club, Union League Club, City Club, Harvard Club, Republican Club, New York Bar Association, all of New York; Harvard Club of Boston.

After graduating from Harvard in 1905 (as of 1906) I entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the fall, taking the course in civil engineering. During the summer periods of 1906, 1907 and 1908, I acquired some little experience in my profession while working in the engineering departments of the New York Central Railroad and the Charles River Basin Commission, respectively. I received the degree of S.B. in 1908. After a little more varied experience in the profession, I accepted the position of instructor in mathematics on board the U. S. S. Ranger, of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School. I welcomed the opportunity of seeing Europe, and my fondest expectations were fully realized. I visited the Azores, England, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Belgium, Germany, France, Monte Carlo, Spain, Morocco, Italy, Gibraltar, Madeira Islands and Bermuda Islands, in the order named. The trip lasted about six months. I resigned my position on the ship in the fall of 1909, upon my return from the cruise, and returned to engineering by accepting a government appointment as civil engineer in the Philippine Islands, where I stayed three and a half years, from January, 1910, to July, 1913. On my return home to Boston, I travelled over the Trans-Siberian Route. In the course of this journey, lasting about six months, I visited Japan, Korea, China, Manchuria, Mongolia, Siberia, Russia, Poland, Germany and France. Shortly after my return to Boston I accepted, in February, 1914, a position with the Stone and Webster Engineering Corporation on the construction of the new Massachusetts Institute of Technology buildings, where I remained about a year. In April, 1915, I was appointed to the engineering staff of the Public Service Commission of New York City, where I have been to this day engaged in design and construction of subways.
